There seems to be no end in the tireless cycle of day to day school. Boredom is a disease that feeds on the minds of students. This disease is brought on by tedious work or lack of interest. One escape is gained through the imagination while another is gained through enjoyment of the simplicities of life. The escaping mind can wander through the fields and feast on its many beauties or just observe the things around him as he sits in school.

The school buses sit idly while the students sit in classes dreaming of two o'clock when they will be free to leave.

From the most unlikely places, beauty arises.

Students often find themselves in a rut. The tedious and monotonous work often causes the individual to be caught up in finishing the task and therefore losing its true purpose. An escape must be found infrequently so that one can find oneself and be able to return with a fresh look when the time comes. This is achieved by doing something which satisfies the individual and allows he or she to relax. One can find this satisfaction in a far off secluded place or somewhere near at hand. It can be found by talking to a friend or joining in group activities. However, it must be found and reached if one is to maintain sanity.

Students "get down" in the gym as they show their school spirit at a pep rally climaxing the "Beat the Bruins" week.

One of the many scenes the mind observes in its journey to quench the appetitie of one's imagination.

A place of seclusion is close at hand on top of the school.

Lori Jeffers talks with a friend on the phone.

Wayne Thurner ends a day of busy activities at school only to find himself anticipating a busier afternoon crammed full of the things he enjoys.

Barbara Kaplan finds enjoyment in making others happy.

Happiness is achieved in many ways. Everyone has there own way of enjoying themselves. Some like to make others happy while others strive for an in ward happiness. Doing the thing that brings them satisfaction is what happiness means — to many people. This inward satisfaction is strived for by all students though found by few.

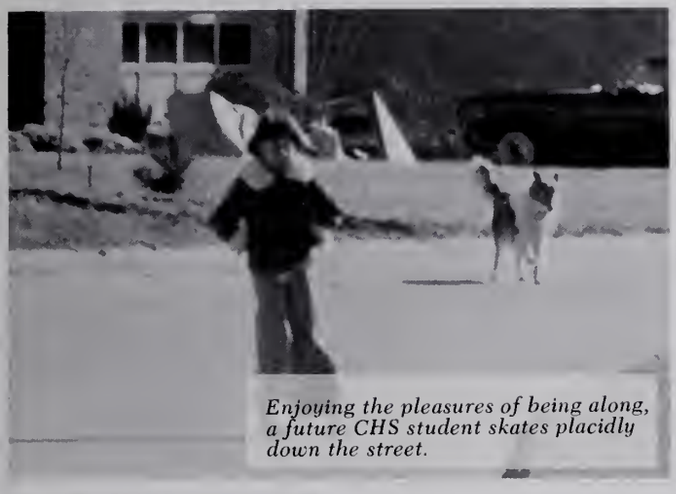
Leo and Norma Facenda, alumni of the class of '67, enjoy a hearty chicken dinner and the company of old classmates at the Alumni Dinner preceeding the Homecoming Game.

Pam Moore goes all out when on the field for she enjoys sharing her pasttime with others.

Spectators line the fence during half-time in hopes of seeing the 1976 Homecoming Queen crowned.

Lunch offers one of the few opportunities for students to chat with friends without running the risk of detention.

Drum Major, Mike Oare, stands before the band as it waits for the pre-game parade to begin in celebration of Homecoming.



Enjoying the pleasures of being along, a future CHS student skates placidly down the street.

Urban developments and desolate fields. Crowded football games and lonely street corners. The company of one and the company of none. Churchland abounds in the coexistence of situations and their apparent opposites. Thus, the student can always find an environment to match his mood.

A desolate barn at Sleepy Hole Park depicts the setting some seek in an effort to get away.

Churchland bridge in one of its rare moments of lonely desolation.

Nightlives vary in nature for each individual in Churchland. Although certain individuals are prepared to enjoy any evening to the hilt, others are willing to drudge through the long, boring week in anticipation of a pleasant weekend when they may relax and amuse themselves. Some persons find it easiest to unwind at exhilarating football games, but others seek to escape their tensions at the more secluded and soothing locations of Churchland.

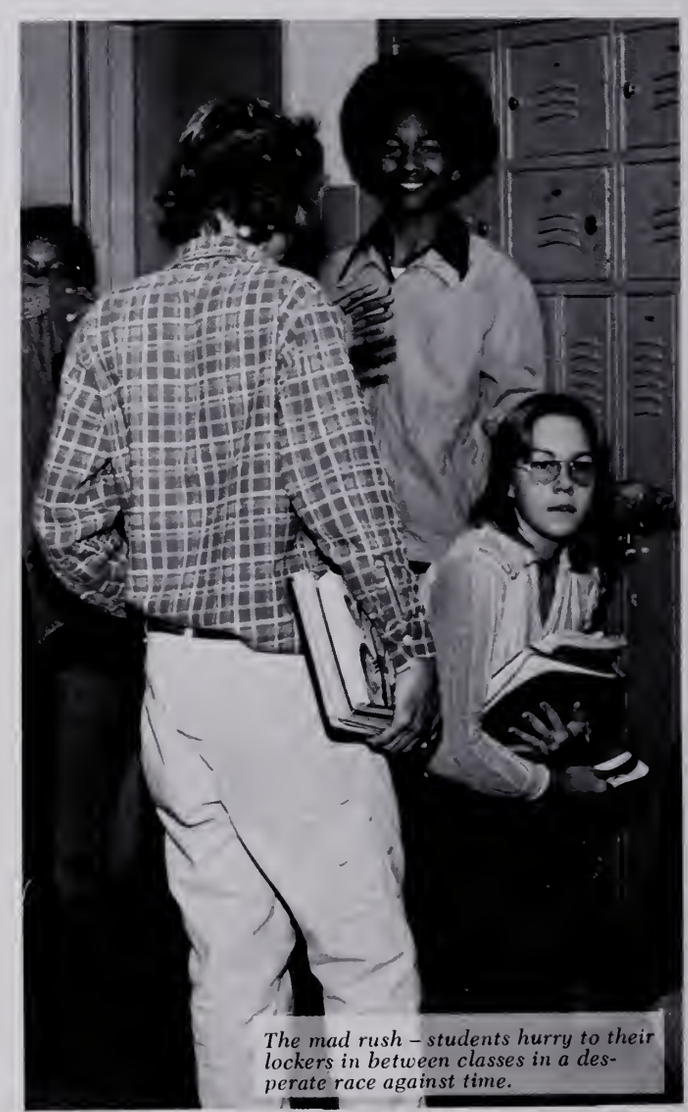
An isolated spot at Sleepy Hole Park.

The prospect of a leisurely weekend makes a smile appear on Simeon Harris's face.

Boredom. Unrelieved, unmitigated boredom. Day in and day out the student trudges in and out of his classes. The only excitement his humdrum day has to offer is the mad rush that takes place when students rush to their lockers in between classes, in a desperate race against the bell which rings with such evil glee, consigning each person to another fifty five minutes of torture.

Lunch, of course offers a brief period of relief. At this time students brighten up considerably in spite of the food, and even manage to arouse themselves from their lethargy and converse with their fellow sufferers.

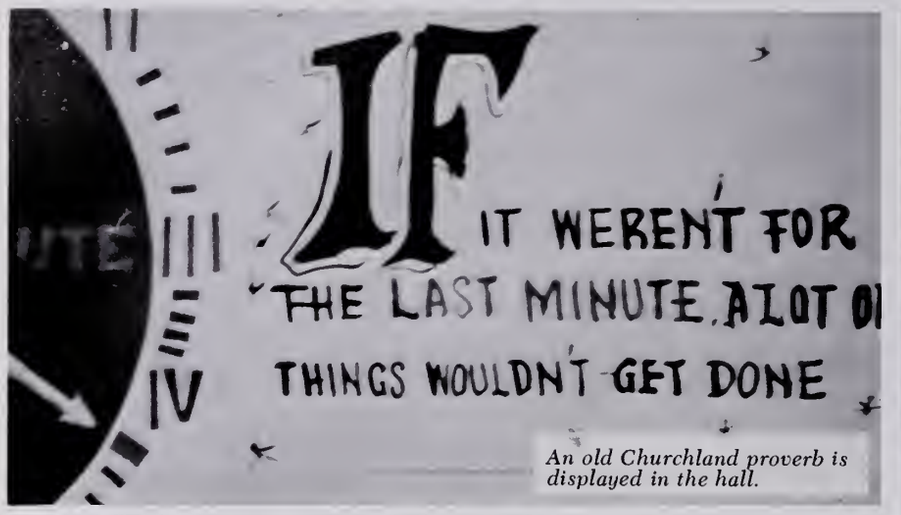
The ominous ring of the bell ends the relief of the sacred lunch hour, but the short break has apparently done some good. Students can be seen to go out of the cafeteria with' their eyes actually open. And so they march out into their classes, to be surprised by the veritable treasurers that were hidden in their minds, underneath the thin film of indifference.



The mad rush – students hurry to their lockers in between classes in a desperate race against time.

Lunch offers a brief respite from the monotony of hard labor

Friday night games come once a week, to unburden the student of all his tensions.



An old Churchland proverb is displayed in the hall.

Procrastination. It seems to affect the whole human race, but apparently, students suffer from it the most. Themes and ideas for term papers and reports alike remain hidden in the dark recesses of the student's mind and under layers of dust in his locker. Valuable time and willpower slips away from the student, as softly falling snow and the warmth of companionship beckon to the procrastinating student.

Prospects of brisk walks through fallen leaves and invigorating snowball fights lure the innocent student away from his work and outside into the bracing air where he becomes enveloped in a wonderful, wintry world. Gone then, are the worries and cares of the student; until some day, in the not very distant future, an irate teacher demands action.

The wonderful white haze of winter suddenly disappears then, leaving the student with only a cold chill going down his back.

Gloomy faces can be seen on deadline days for reports.

The stark beauty of winter lures the unsuspecting student away from his work.

The warmth of companionship has more appeal than the prospect of lonely hours of research for term papers.

Snow, a rare thing in Churchland, coaxes most people into an aggreeable mood.

THEM

There is more to Churchland High School than just rushing to English, math, science, lunch, history, and then home. There is an abundance of activities. Homecoming, Mock Elections, plays, and musicals are just a few things as well as the outside life of the students. These and many more are covered in these pages showing everyone the other side of Churchland.

MOCK ELECTION

Paradoxical Pageantry

Homecoming Court

Shannon Huffman Barbara Kersey Kathy Bolling Laurie Sutton

It was the best of times. it was the worst of times, it was an evening of ecstasy, it was an evening of disappointment, it was the season of enthusiasm, it was the season of apathy, it was a term of enjoyment, it was a term of boredom — in short, it was Homecoming.

Paul Neuman intently watches the progress of the game as the Truckers close in on a 44-6 victory over Deep Creek.

At the conclusion of the half time festivities the newly crowned queen, JoAnna Early, is escorted off the field by Bill Ordeman proceeded by Christine Parrino, the maid of honor, and her escort, Jeff Keel.

Cindy Bolling Helen Bullock Carol Huff Ruth Elmore Carol Morgan Tricia Robinson

Janice Pickerell is one of the many National Honor Society members who helped in setting up and serving the Alumni Dinner honoring the Classes of '67 and '52.

Electrifying,

For those actively involved in preparation for its advent Homecoming was as thrilling as ever — despite the fact that the stands were only two thirds full, despite the fact that only 50 percent of the student body voted in the election of the court, and despite the fact that the parade was almost abandoned because only three organizations built floats.

Varsity Cheerleaders like Donna Criddle, Cathy Creamer and Terri Burke, made the parade prior to the game more exciting by throwing candy which they, themselves paid for.

Some have attributed Homecoming's many paradoxes to its date — September 24. They point to the fact that Homecoming was upon the student body before it could get back into the swing of school. Others claim that the spirit week for the Western Branch game the week before had depleted the school spirit of both organizations and individuals. Certainly, the disappointment of the loss to Western Branch did not enhance the prospects of Homecoming.

In spite of these setbacks, Homecoming managed to arrive at Churchland with the grace and dignity befitting its age. The pageantry and festivities intrinsic in its coming were augmented by the crowning of JoAnna Early, the 44-6 victory over Deep Creek and the Homecoming dance featuring the band, Mad Wax.

During half-time, a junior high student managed to get a place at the fence in order to have a better view of the coronation.

Despite the Fact

Webb Tri-Hi-Y constructed a float which sported the slogan "Churchland says: Beat the Hornets", as well as "Fonzie" Olander, and Henry Philyaw.

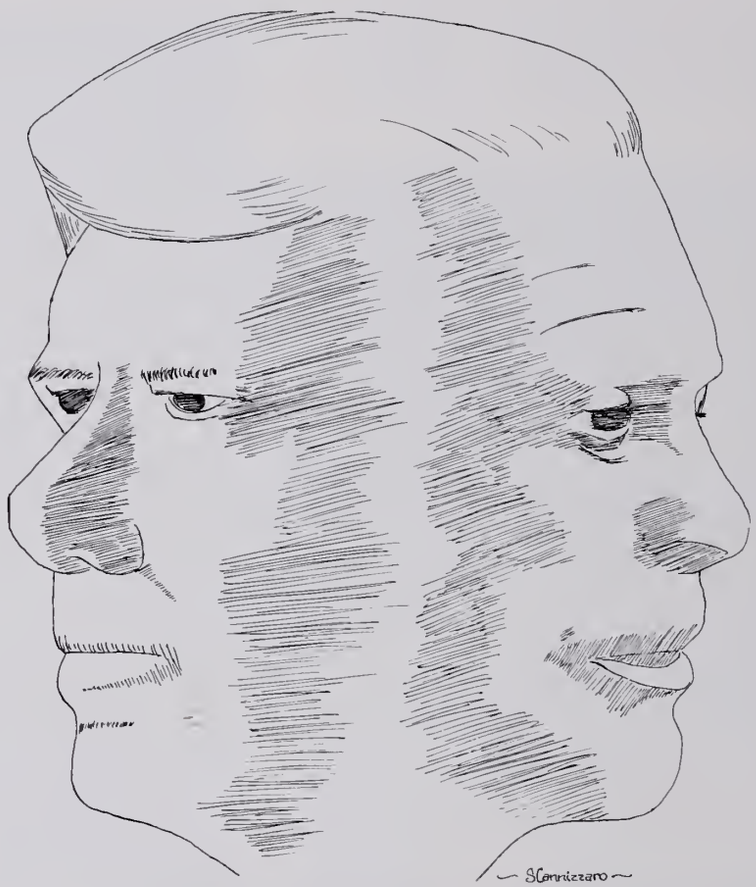
The C.B. Club won first place for their float which sported this bear, a giant C.B. radio and the slogan, "Break the Hornets". Unfortunately, the float could not be in the pre-game parade because it had been built facing the wrong direction.

Although Churchland Tri-Hi-Y did not build a float, they supported the parade by providing clowns who in reality were their siblings incognito.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duke's children, Susan, eight and Johnny, four and a half added grace to the halftime coronation by serving as crown-bearers.

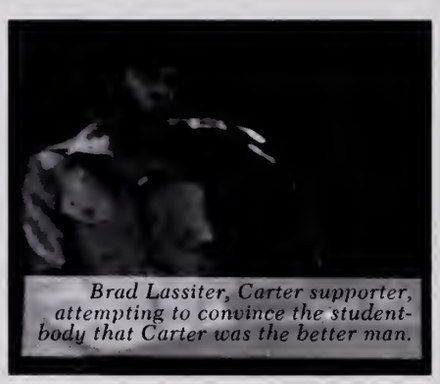
A Political . . . Suicide?

The past few years have seen greater interest in the personal lives of the candidates and diminished concern about the issues concerning each election. The lives and habits of Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford have been scrutinized more keenly, than have the policies and platforms which these men represent. Though the candidates were often accused of being vague in relating their ideals, the public lacked the insistence that would force the candidates to relinquish their views. It would almost seem as if the candidates didn't want to win the election, as their campaigns were marked with error after error. Carter harped on Ford's Polish mistake and often mentioned "not mentioning Watergate." The Ford camp used Carter's inconsistent attitudes toward defense spending and they also used Carter's interview with Playboy magazine to possibly suggest a lack of morals. In the debates, it was not a question of which of the candidates did the better job, rather which one didn't do the worse.

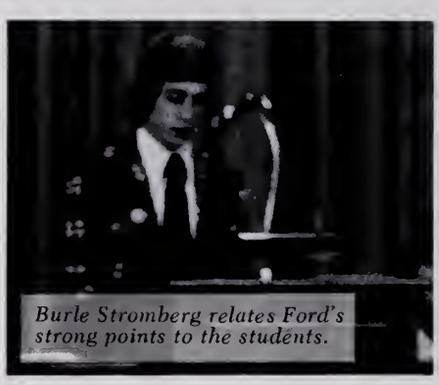


The basic issue was the reinstatement of public trust in the federal government. As is customary, each candidate promised to do his best to serve all the American people. The area of most concern was the economy. Ford stressed the importance of nailing down inflation, while Carter showed greater concern for the underpriviledged and wanted to reduce the unemployment rate.

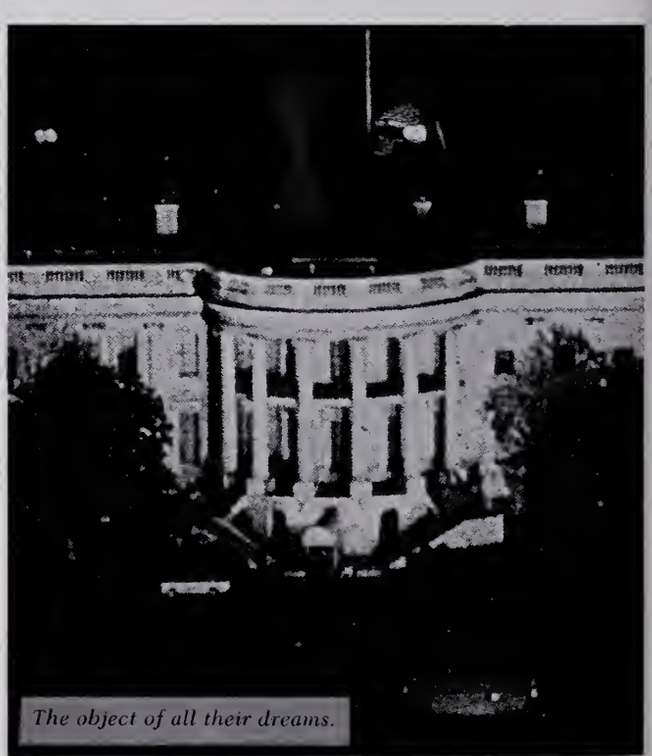
Burle Stromberg, the student representative for Ford, made claims that Ford's superiority was obvious in light of his ample federal experience. Brad Lassiter, Carter supporter felt that his experience in Georgia gave him vital knowledge of the executive branch of the government.



Brad Lassiter, Carter supporter, attempting to convince the student-body that Carter was the better man.

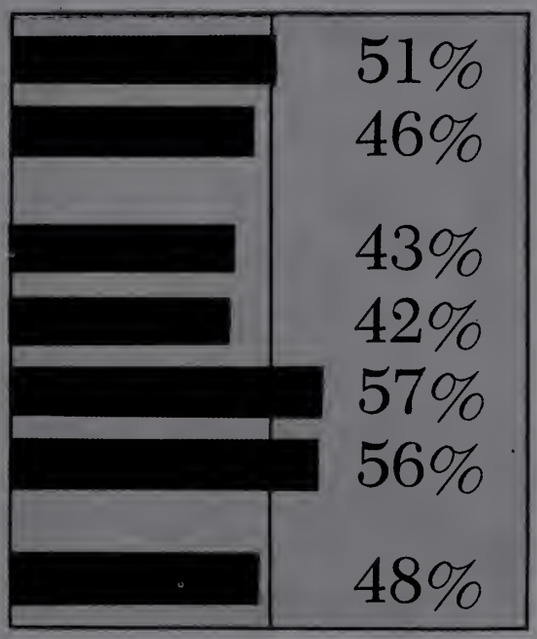


Burle Stromberg relates Ford's strong points to the students.



The object of all their dreams.

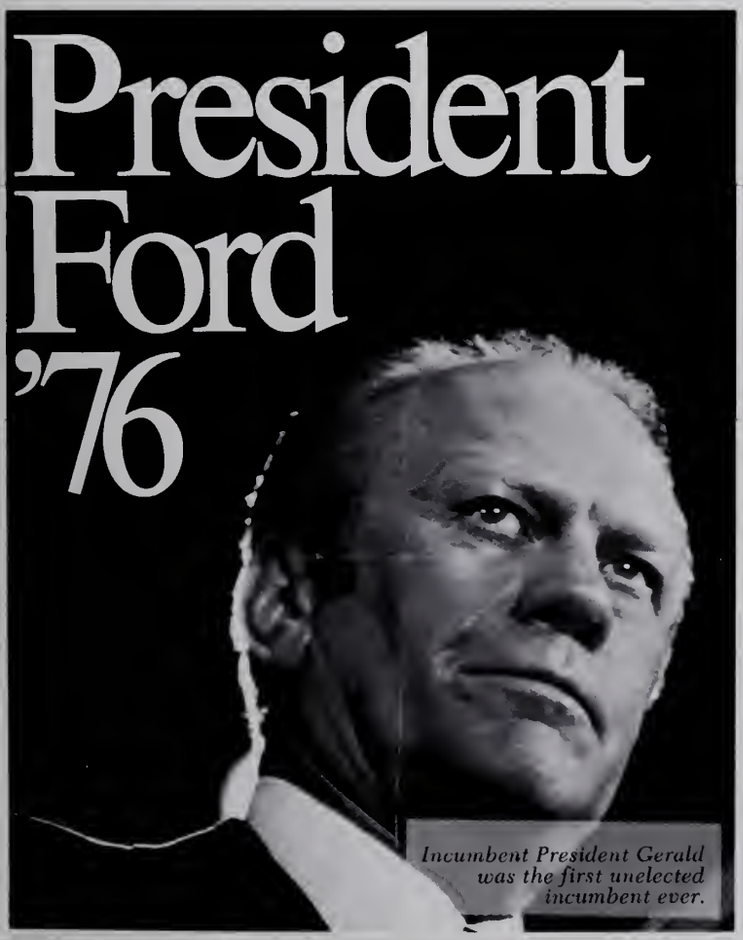
Average Knowledge of High School Students



The previous chart was drawn from data gathered by members of one of the government classes. The students designed a questionaire that would measure the average knowledge of the student body on the issues most concerning this election, namely: Abortion, Tax Relief, Unemployment, Federal Spending, Gun Control, Ford's Pardon of Nixon, Equal Rights.

Jimmy Carter and running-mate, Walter Mondale were easily nominated to run for the Presidency.

President Ford '76



Incumbent President Gerald was the first unelected incumbent ever.

Football . . .

Bob Daniel — two term incumbent in Congress — and Billy O'Brien — Delegate to the Virginia State Congress — each trying his best to do the "best" for the 4th District. Daniel well known for his conservative fiscal policies and his multitude of holdings in major corporations. O'Brien of solid reputation as football coach of Great Bridge High School, promised to represent the district, not as a politician but as a constituent would see the issues. As he said, "It is time to put someone like you in Congress."

Daniel ran his campaign as would any worthy incumbent, stressing his record and experience in an effort to gain the support of the majority. Although Daniel had no lack of finance, his time for campaigning was so thinly stretched to such a point that it seemed he might possibly loose his lead in the pre-election polls.

O'Brien was practically the opposite. He had more time to campaign, but fell short in campaign donations and had to place a second mortgage on his house.

In an interview with

The student body took an active part in the construction and display of signs.

Barbara Kersey, sought to prove the reasons that showed Billy O'Brien to be the best representative for this area.

Billy O'Brien the Democratic nominee believed that Congress needed not only people to represent the constituents, but also people representative of the district.

And Farms

the government classes O'Brien at times seemed unsure of the power of his "would-be" position. When pressed for his views, he confessed that he was confused and a benevolent student informed him of these powers

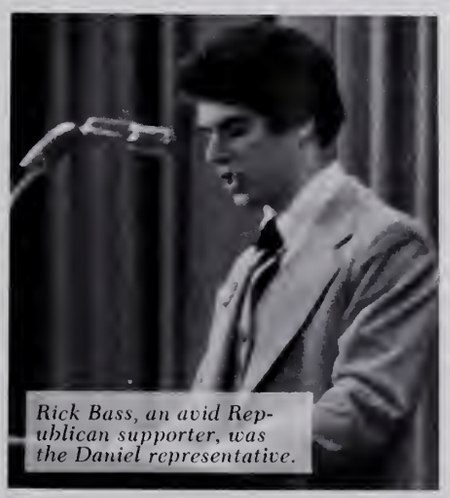
In a pre-election rally for the candidates. Barbara Kersey expressed the view that O'Brien, being a middle-class person would be able to relate to the problems of the average person. This is a claim that couldn't be contended with. Rick Bass for Daniel, thought that mediocrity had no place in Congress and therefore we should have "an above-average" person to represent us.

Daniel clearly beat O'Brien in the election and the victory was conceded before ten o'clock.

In spite of O'Brien's sweep of the Portsmouth, Cheasapeake and Virginia Beach areas, he did not do well enough to bring up the figures in the remaining areas where he more often than not was defeated by Daniel decisively. In the school election, however, the incumbent Daniel was defeated by a very narrow margin by O'Brien.

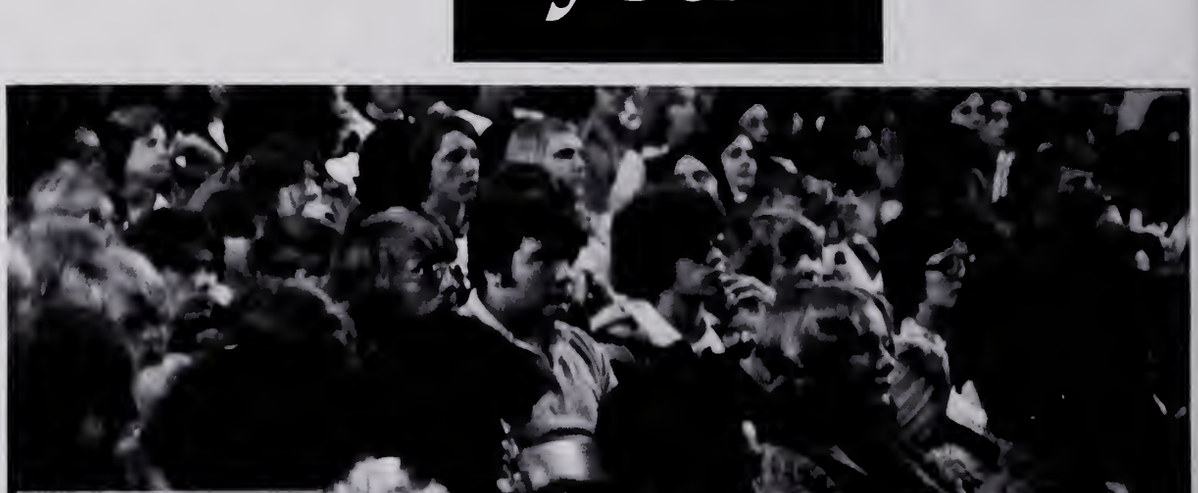
Republican candidate, Bob Daniel – the incumbent. Daniel used his experience in Congress to help convince the people of the 4th District that he was more competant.

Daniel sign.



Rick Bass, an avid Republican supporter, was the Daniel representative.

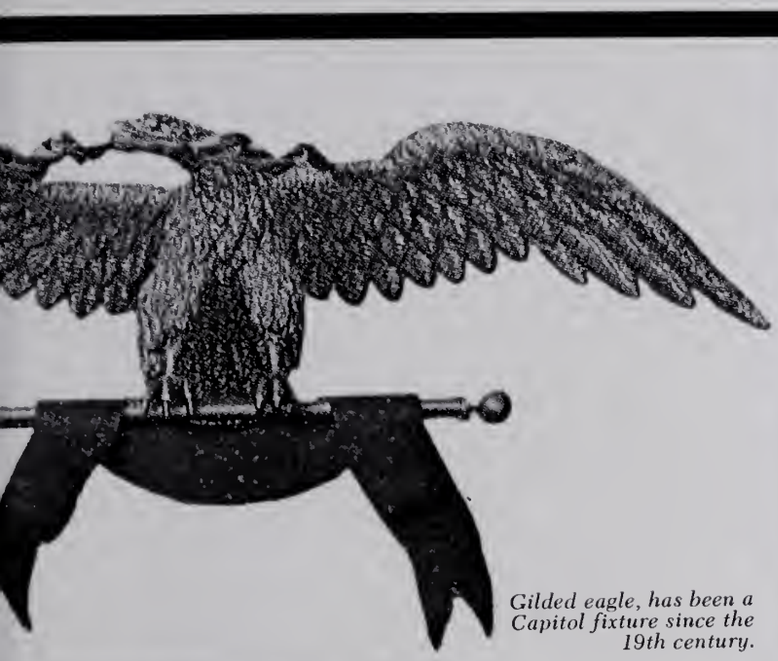
the choice is yours



Sophomores Richard Woods and Lee Roberts weigh the facts as they decide which candidates to support.

Elmo Zumwalt, former Secretary of the Navy, ran as a Democrat.

Harry Byrd has been some type of representative for Virginia for the past 28 years, in the State Senate and in the U.S. Senate.



Gilded eagle, has been a Capitol fixture since the 19th century.

Kathy Supinski, captain of the Debate Team exhibited her eloquence in speaking during the Mock Election Assembly.

Kieth VanCuren informs the student body of Zumwalt's strong points.

Tarnished Esteem

In a political year marred with "mud-slinging" and slanderous remarks, Virginians unfortunately have proven that we are no different than anyone else. Elmo Zumwalt was given the title "carpet-bagger" and the incumbent Harry Byrd was accused of the occasional misrepresentation of his constituates. These allegations, fortunately were made by biased observers rather than by the candidates themselves. This question was debated individually by many people and in an assembly by Kathy Supinski and believed that Byrd's years in the State Legislature and previous term in the Senate put him in greater touch with the needs of Virginians and made him invaluable as our representative.

VanCuren, on the other hand, thought that Zumwalt, it would seem should be happily accepted as our servent.

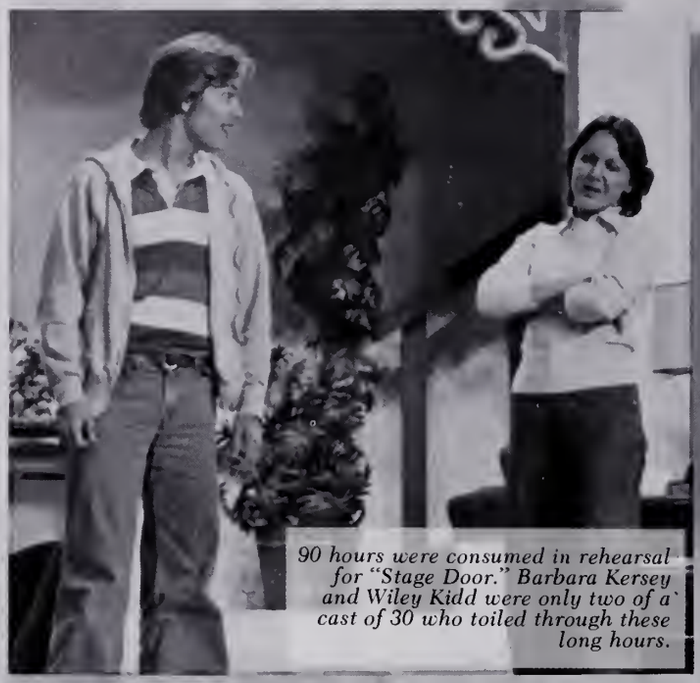
Kicking off the new season of dramatic endeavors was the fall play, "Stage Door." This was a comedy involving the veteran acting ability of seniors: Barbara Kersey, Robert Lauer, Debbie Taylor, Lois Bailey, Denise Airaghi and sophomore Wiley Kidd. The story revolved around a boarding house and the group of young girls staying there while searching for "The Big Part" on a Broadway play. This situation entailed a large amount of merriment as an aspiring young talent, Barbara Kersey, overcame discouragement. In summarizing the play, it should only be fair to give credit where credit is due. Behind the scenes, Mr. Underhill and his group of stage crew consisting of Pat Hurley, Bill Taylor, Doug Mller, and Steve Cannizzaro aided in the production of the play immensely by constructing the set and working the lights and curtains. Without the directing aid of Mrs. Brady and student director Keith Bouffard, the play could not have proceeded as it did.



90 hours were consumed in rehearsal for "Stage Door." Barbara Kersey and Wiley Kidd were only two of a cast of 30 who toiled through these long hours.

Barbara Kersey, a veteran actress of three years, makes a statement startling to her supporting actresses: Donna Moreland, Anna Joseph, and Yolander Yarborough.

"Stage Door" is the first play that Donna Moreland has had a major role in. Critics of the play feel that she displayed great talent.

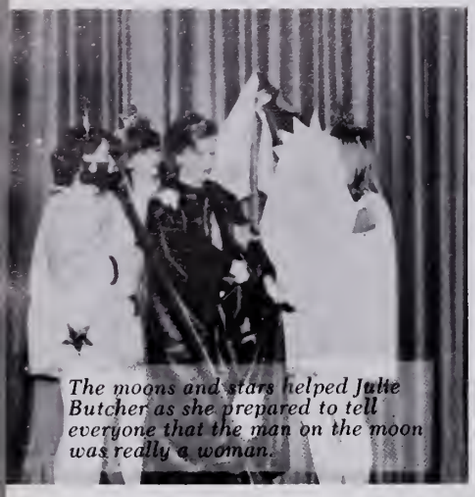
During a practice of the play, Debbie Taylor listens ardently to Barbara Kersey.

STAGE DOOR

Robert Lauer listens uncomfortably as Denise Airaghi spastically reminisces about their past.

While participating in "Stage Door," Nancy Jo Miller was able to acquire points towards becoming an Honor Thespian. In this scene, she is surrounded by Lynn Lampkin, Dana Morris, and Sandy Sloan.

MAME



The moons and stars helped Julie Butcher as she prepared to tell everyone that the man on the moon was really a woman.

They sacrificed their Christmas holidays, their afternoons and even their snow day vacations to polish it. In fact, the cast polished their musical, "Mame", so well that they received standing ovations two nights running. The Churchland version of the former Broadway musical featured all three Kersey kids in prominent roles, as well as starring Beth Buckley and Julie Butcher. The plot of the musical revolved around the efforts of a liberally minded rich woman to raise her nephew despite the interferences of a narrow-minded trustee.

The only major problem encountered in "Mame's" production was keeping Barbara Kersey from falling in the scene where she swung on the silver moon. The student director, Debbie Taylor, along with Mrs. Mary Jo Brady solved the problem by adding the line, "Get me down!", to the script. This line served as a cue to bring Mr. Underhill running from his place behind the scenes to rescue the falling Barbara. Incidents like this give evidence of the creativity and resourcefulness that characterized the entire production.

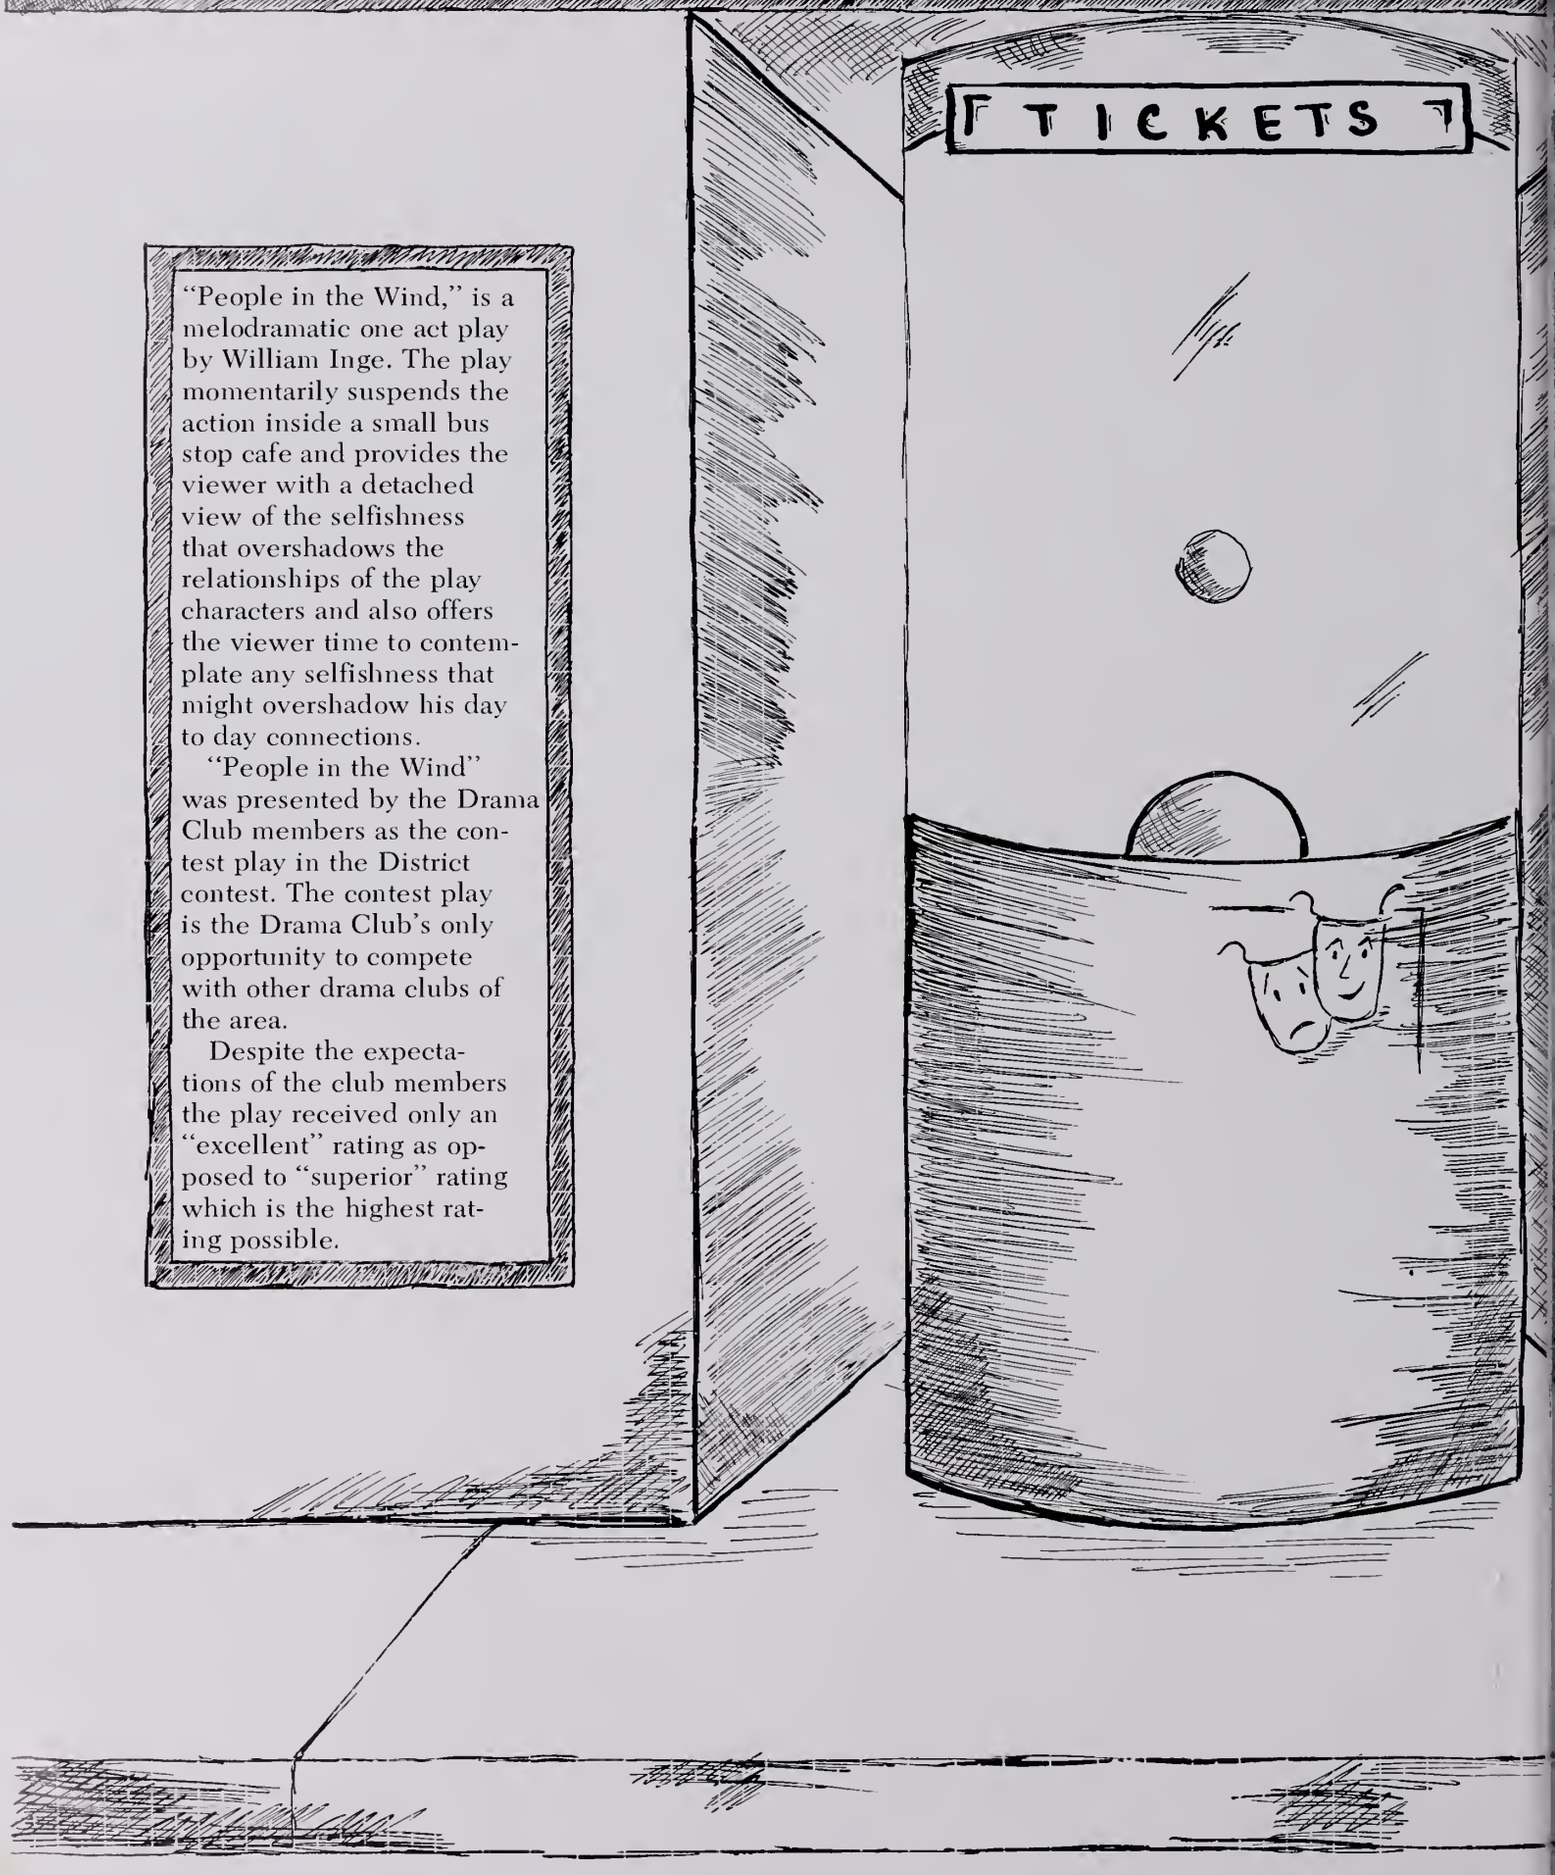
Beth Buckley serves as a perfect Christmas tree for Robert Lauer as Barbara Kersey sings a cheerful song.

Pam Moore waits back home for the arrival of her sweetheart as her kinfolk stand-by.

Barbara and Marc Kersey do a little waltz to lift their spirits.

David Kersey is amazed at the reaction of everyone to his new-found-love.

PEOPLE IN



"People in the Wind," is a melodramatic one act play by William Inge. The play momentarily suspends the action inside a small bus stop cafe and provides the viewer with a detached view of the selfishness that overshadows the relationships of the play characters and also offers the viewer time to contemplate any selfishness that might overshadow his day to day connections.

"People in the Wind" was presented by the Drama Club members as the contest play in the District contest. The contest play is the Drama Club's only opportunity to compete with other drama clubs of the area.

Despite the expectations of the club members the play received only an "excellent" rating as opposed to "superior" rating which is the highest rating possible.

THE WIND

Robert Lauer cast as a drunken professor drowns his sorrows in the bus station.

Julie Butcher helps dispose of the props after the play.

Debbie Taylor and Barbara Kersey tend the counter in the bus station.

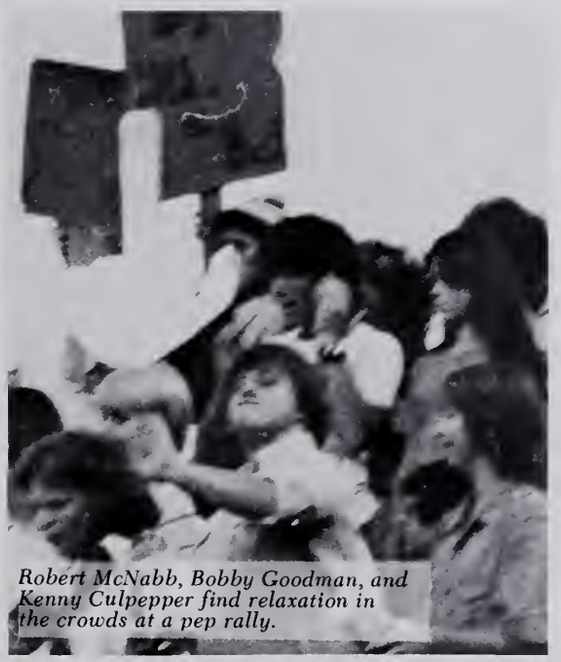
AFTERNOON A DELIGHT

Whether looking for the crowd or a place to be by himself a student can always find the time. Be it the few minutes a person has for himself or the long awaited weekend everyone can think of someplace they would like to be or something they would like to be doing. In this period of rest and relaxation some find enjoyment in solitude and others in the impersonality of crowds. Some can find what they want walking down a lonely path or pedaling along a quiet road but there are others who would prefer to go out with friends or be jammed in the mass of vibrating flesh on the floor at a rock concert.

A bicycle is the means for escape from the confinements of the routine of the day.

The JV basketball team takes a minute for fun from the rigid afternoon practices.

The setting sun is the signal for many students to come to life.



Robert McNabb, Bobby Goodman, and Kenny Culpepper find relaxation in the crowds at a pep rally.

Ross Spencer perfects his frisbee technique on a quiet weekend at Sleepy Hole Park.

Mrs. Cramer patronizes a basketball game and gazes intently at the proceedings.

PARENT'S PLAY

Parents play an important role in the functioning of the many facets of student life at Churchland. From the beginning of the day to late at night a student is continually prodded and encouraged by his parents to strive for the "excellence" that every parent "knows" is in his or her offspring. It is true that only a small fraction of the education of a student is at school, the parents are the ones that truely guide students in their "education." Who but a parent would care enought to work in a cold, damp concession stand many a Friday night or to sit through a year of very unprofessionally played school sports?

Parents turned out to support the homecoming parade before the game with Deep Creek.

The mother of a student sits patiently in the office to discuss the progress of her child.

Mr. Blythe contributes his support to the Trucker sports program.

Out With The Old

MR. RYDER

This year brought to the end a fine career for Mr. Ryder. He gave up his job as Principal of Churchland High School to be Assistant Superintendent in charge of Business Affairs.

Though all of Mr. Ryder's years at Churchland, five years in all, 1973 had to be his best. In that year, just after one-and-a-half years at Churchland, he was voted "Outstanding Secondary Educator of America for 1973." He was selected for this honor by a nationwide committee of business leaders and educators.

Mr. Ryder developed the summer program "Able and Ambitious" for gifted students. Many students of Churchland participated in it this part year.

In With The New

MR. MORGAN

Mr. Morgan was chosen as Mr. Ryder's successor as Principal of Churchland High School. Before being chosen for this job, Mr. Morgan was Principal of Churchland Junior High School for five years.

He received a B.A. degree in psychology from Fredrick College and an M.Ed. and Certificate of Advanced Standing in education from William and Mary.

Mr. Morgan was named "outstanding young educator" in 1973. He is an active PTA member and chairman of the Portsmouth PTA Council Scholarship Committee.

FORENSICS
(fə-ren'siks)

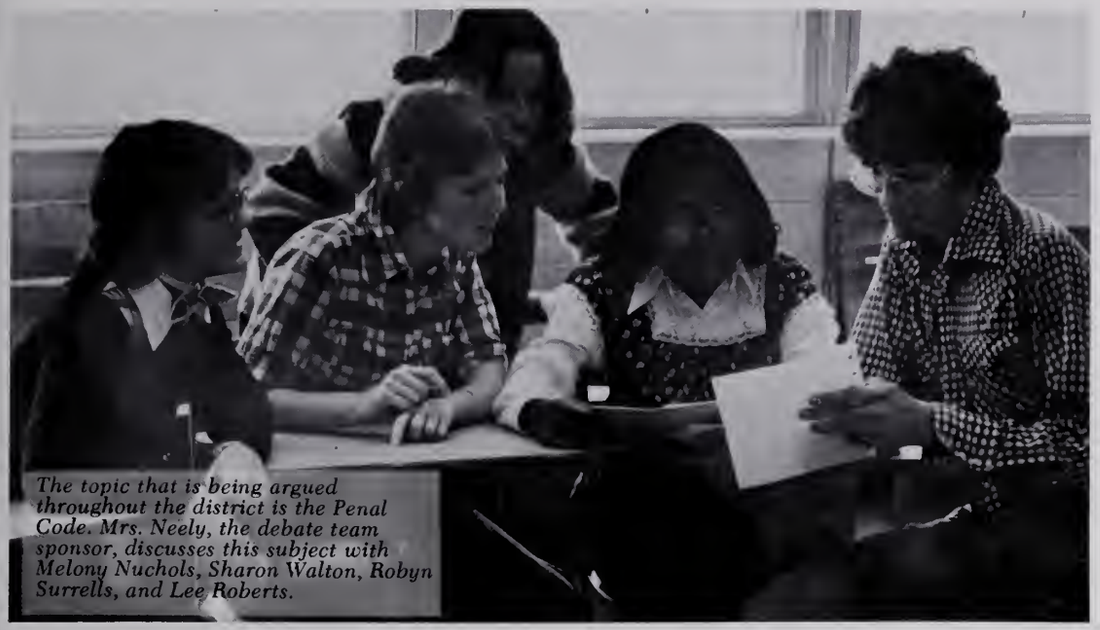
Only a few good persons challenge of being forensic team members. They must be adept at oral communications and they must be original. These two skills are very important in the Extemporaneous field. Kathy Supinski and Burle Stromberg because they are in this field have to be up to date in current events. During competition, they draw a subject from a hat to speak about and are given 30 minutes to write a 5 minute speech. The competition also includes other categories. Pam Kopelove participates in spelling Barbara Kersey and Mike Fulton recite poetry while Keith VanCuren and Lois Bailey read prose. Rick Bass and Julie Butcher participate in Original Oratory.

They are ardently coached by Mrs. Mary Jo Brady. The team held their first district meet on February the 9th at Indian River High School.

Original Oratory is a challenging field in which Julie Butcher participates.

Perhaps the Extemporaneous division of forensics is the most difficult. One must be knowledgeable of worldly affairs and must be able to speak on any subject given to him. Burle Stromberg is shown giving a speech. He is in this division.

Mrs. Mary Jo Brady, forensics coach, practices with each member of the team at least an hour a day. She is shown helping Barbara Kersey.



The topic that is being argued throughout the district is the Penal Code. Mrs. Neely, the debate team sponsor, discusses this subject with Melony Nuchols, Sharon Walton, Robyn Surrells, and Lee Roberts.

Mrs. Neely shows Sharon Walton and Melony Nuchols different ways to express oneself. Expression by hand and by speech is a fundamental principle when debating.

One of the foundations of solid debating is clash. Clash is the conflict between two teams. Lee Roberts and Robyn Surrells illustrate this.

The debate team, with only one meet under its belt, has great potential to become a superior force in the district. During the first meet, Kathy Supinski, Glen Bricker, Max Cannon, and Janice Pickrell won trophies. Fund raising events such as the bake sale at the musical "Mame" grossed a moderate sum of money. Participants in this sale were Melody Nuchols, Lori Eldridge, and Lee Roberts. The major obstacle blocking the team's growth is the conflict with other organizations of which many of the participants are involved. The trials and tribulations of this year should make next year's team more successful.

CHS REPORTS

How CHS students found means to make another year unique.

Co-ed Calisthenics

Girl's softball has bit the dust. In its place there stands Girl's fastpitch. The cause? The Supreme Court handed down a decision stating that either girls must be allowed on male sports teams or the same sport must be offered for a girl's team. The decision also indicated that schools must move to co-ed Physical Education programs. Consequently, Churchland High P.E. teachers ponder the possibility of team teaching or of phase electives. Meanwhile, they hasten to amend the current athletic program before (horror of horrors) a girl goes out for football.

Backwards Float

It was Homecoming night, time for the Pre-game parade. Spectators clogged the walkways or sat tensely in the stands. The announcer, proclaiming the C.B. Club's float to have won the first place prize of twenty-five dollars, began his narration of the parade. The parade came and went, yet the spectators were still waiting for a glimpse of the award-winning float. The float, hosting a large replica of a C.B. radio, a broadcasting bear, and the slogan, "Break the Hornets", was behind the stands. It seems that earlier when C.B. club members had showed up with their float, the judges informed them that they had built it facing the wrong direction. The backwards float is somewhat of a paradox — club members claim it was built according to the judges' specifications.

Bacchanalian Activities

"I was at a football game recently and there I saw 15 and 16 year olds who were intoxicated to the point of unconsciousness. I repeat they were INTOXICATED!"

Despite the obvious amusement of the spectators and some of the younger delegates, the high school student continued to preach on the evils of teen-age drinking. The scene was the Virginia General Assembly where a bill had recently been introduced to raise the legal age for purchasing beer from 18 to 19 years. The bill, which would not change the legal age of 21 for buying liquor and wine, wound up in a sub-committee for further consideration. Even if it is eventually passed, the bill will have little impact on Churchland students because of the wide availability of fake I.D.'s and because of the ease with which beer can be purchased even without such devices.

Lost & Found

In the future, students will have a more difficult time when deciding upon class rings than in the past years. Churchland High, which is usually free from "crimes" of any type was given a jarring shock when the rings Josten's displays in the showcase windows were stolen from their display stand. The assortment of rings, which were valued at more than $700, were stolen from their showcase during an afternoon after school when the building was relatively empty.

Similar thefts took place in other schools, but the matter was not treated as seriously as in Churchland.

Although a suspect was apprehended, justice was not meted out. The culprit escaped the consequences of his deed through a technicality of the law — his confession was not signed in the presence of his parents.

As a result of this unfortunate occurrence, Josten's will no longer display complete rings. Instead, stones will be displayed along with the regular brochures and pictures. Entire rings will be displayed only when a Josten's representative is present in the school.

RAISING the SPIRITS

Although there has been some rivalry between Western Branch and Churchland High school for a long time, no class has been more original than the class of '78 in expressing its hostilities.

One night, a week before the Western Branch-Churchland football game, a group of juniors invaded the grounds of Western Branch. At this time, they captured the Western Branch flagpole and raised a flag bearing the slogan, "CHS #1 Class of '78." In order to prevent any Bruins from lowering the flag, they proceeded to grease the lower half of the flagpole. Unfortunately, even the intelligent Bruins contrived to lower the flag.

Ironically, the flag served to raise rather than dampen their spirits because it was used as fuel for a bonfire at their pep rally.

ENERGY crunch

Jack Frost finally found his way to Churchland catching many unprepared. The Portsmouth School Board despite almanac's predictions had prepared a calendar that contained no snow days. As a result Portsmouth students found themselves in the midst of their Easter vacation 92 days before Easter. This shutdown of the area schools and factories was brought on by Vepco's inability to bear its normal electric load because of ice clogging the water intake pipes of its nuclear power plant.

As the winter wore on, and thermostats went up, Virginia found that like ten other states it had an insufficient supply of natural gas. Utilizing the Emergency Broadcast System, Governor Godwin declared Virginia to be in a state of emergency and ordered businesses to move to 40-hour work weeks and to lower their thermostats to 65°. The executive order also caused 10% of the public schools to close because they were heated by gas.

Churchland High, relying on oil for heat and having virtually no thermostat control, continued oblivious to the state's crisis. Students trudging to school through the snow felt rather like postmen. After all, it seemed that "neither snow, nor rain, nor gloom of night" could close the doors of Churchland High.

CLASSES

Each class as well as the teachers at Churchland are unique. The Freshman class, one of the largest ever, is just beginning their existance for they face many hardships. The Sophomore class is considered no-man's land for they are neither at the beginning and by no means near the end. The Junior class is one of spirit and ambition. This, one of the hardest years, is what separates the workers from the non-workers. The Senior year is the beginning as well as the end for many. They must pass from adolescents to adults. The administration is ready to help the students in their search for themselves. This section is to show the people of Churchland as they are sifted through the system.

197

Finally We're Seniors

Sammy Davis suggests that "Senior Slump" comes early as he falls asleep in English because of an interesting lecture.

Senior Lee Owen wonders when Speech Class will ever end. Slowwwly the clock lags on, but never soon enough to stave off boredom.

We started our days at Churchland High School in 1972. We were filled with the hopes, fears, and bewilderment of what lay ahead.

As freshmen and sophomores, we began to make choices about the future, and to prepare for what was to come. Maturity came in these years, as we entered into adulthood.

Our junior year was unforgettable. Class spirit abounded, as we worried over science projects, Mr. Mancuso's terms and English research papers. Graduation seemed like the "impossible dream."

Then, all of a sudden, we were seniors. Graduation seemed to be our major goal. "Senior slump" set in, yet somehow that day did arrive.

And again we are filled with the hopes, fears and bewilderment of what is ahead of us.

A Letter from Paula

This AFS-year has been a great experience for me and I am so glad I was able to spend this year with you in Churchland High. When I go back to Finland, I have one year left at school. You other seniors continue your education in colleges or you go to work. Whatever your plans are for the future, I wish you good luck.

I also want to thank you all. both the teachers and the students, for your friendliness and help you gave to me.

I will never forget this year and Churchland, for no doubt, Churchland is #1!

Competition: CHS

Spirited Students carry a peer.

School competition can be most clearly seen in the area of sports. There are several directions an individual can take: football, basketball, tennis, golf, track, wrestling, and baseball.

It is in the field of sports that an individual can use his talents to the fullest extent as possible, taking pride in knowing that he has given his all.

Churchland has offered unique opportunities to pursue almost any field of sports.

The area of sports is not limited to "men only." Many girls also have the desire to test their ability as competitors. This desire can branch off into many directions: hockey, softball, basketball, tennis, and track.

Churchland High School has been most fortunate in having winning teams in almost every area of sports they participate in, thanks to the dedication of all involved.

Politics. This word seemd to permeate our senior year. Miss Moore and Mrs. Short guided us through a whirlwind course of how our government works, and more specifically, how officials are elected.

Government projects, dealing with various aspects of the election, took up all our time. Many students actively worked for various campaigns, and really came to appreciate our political system.

The climax of our activities was the mock election. Six students spoke for the candidates, after which the student body cast their ballots for the "better man."

We were lucky to be seniors in an election year. It helped us to get a more true understanding of politics.

18th Birthday

One of the most memorable moments of the senior year is turning 18. It's on this day one becomes a full-fledged adult. Along with the usual celebration comes new responsibilities: eligibiltiy for the draft; stricker treatment under the law; and voting in elections.

Turning 18 makes one legally responsible for his own actions. And this responsibility cannot be taken lightly. So maturity must also be present. The maturity to make wise decisions, and not to "take advantage" of being legal age, must prevail.

Class of '78

Juniors have always been famous for their diligence and busy lives in pursuit of knowledge and the Juniors of '78 have kept up that tradition. They have had their share of outside reading from Mr. Mancuso, their share of name-calling from Mrs. Perlick and also their share of fun that seems to be saved especially for those unique individuals who are juniors.

Along with the trials and tribulations came a greater sense of appreciation of each other. It is during this time that many realize that next year would be the last year together, for many will leave never to return.

Weekends are the best things about a Junior's life. After a week of hard work in school the weekend gives the students a chance to unwind, relax, enjoy themselves and maybe even catch up with their work.

Spirited students attend football or other games, and later attend the dances that celebrate our usual victories. Others spend time cruising by their friend's houses, piling as many people as possible into one car, getting rowdy, or going to a hamburger place to grab a bite to eat.

Another weekend pastime of Churchland High School students is to have a "fox hunt!" A form of "tag" using CB radios to locate a car which has been made "fox." The first car to locate the "fox" then becomes the next "fox."

However, the most common (though not the most appreciated) pastime of the Junior is to stay cooped up in the library all weekend, doing research for a paper that was due a month ago.

Entering their third year of high school, the Junior class came prepared. Armed with paintbrushes, pencils, and catchy phrases to release their spirit in the year to come. The first object of unified action was the week's proceedings before the Western Branch football game. A small group of exceptionally spirited Juniors worked until dark every night that week, creating signs and pep tags. This was one of the major reasons for the Juniors' capturing the Spirit Cup sponsored by VICA. The Juniors also showed a bit of originality by creating a flag which they tied to the top of Western Branch's flagpole.

After the week of the Western Branch game the Juniors were preparing for a fund raising drive to earn money. The Juniors continued their explosive pace of spirit throughout the year by always working and involving the students.

The Junior year is one of learning of the frustrations that will be coming in the years to follow. This is the year of a student's first full term paper, science projects, for some a book analysis in history and SATs. Despite a Junior's hours of study he finds what "blank" means when trying to understand a test of Mr. Mancuso's theory of democracy or Mr. Paige's symbolism.

The third year of high school is also a time for many a social frustration as anyone who has had Mrs. Perlick is sure to know and understand. These frustrations of life are just another part of life that a student must encounter and overcome.

It's hold your nose and bottoms up as Emory Fuller and John Degaraff shovel it in.

Class of '79

The sophomore class had a lot to be spirited about this past year. Behind Class President David Kersey and advisor Mr. Robert Moore, they Sponsored two very Successful dances. The Money they made from these two dances was used for the highlight of the year, the Freshman-Sophomore Prom.

The class of '79 moved another step up the ladder towards the rank of Senior. They became a vital part of Churchland High School. Their spirit was felt throughout the school.

The sophomore year has many advantages and a few disadvantages, and the memories of this year will be with us always, but next year another step up to Junior.

Spanish, French, Latin, Chorus, Band, Art, Communications, and Typing are just a few of the choices that confront a Sophomore in September. Many students don't bother to check into the different possibilities that are offered in these courses and end up in a class they don't like. Most sophomores choose to take a language; Spanish seems to be the most popular, but French and Latin are close behind. If you speak to one of these students you may hear: "?Como esto?" or "Comment allez-vous?" or "Quid agis ?" You can always walk away with a quick "ine-fay" before they realize what has happened.

Biology engulfed the sophomores mind by teaching them of life — biologically speaking. After learning about how the chromosomes line up, the structure of many animals, and why the "Tasmanian Devil" is in Timbuktu, they were ready to leave this class and not rejoin it until 23 hours later.

Biology did offer new concepts in the structure of the human bodies. Much was learned in Biology this year.

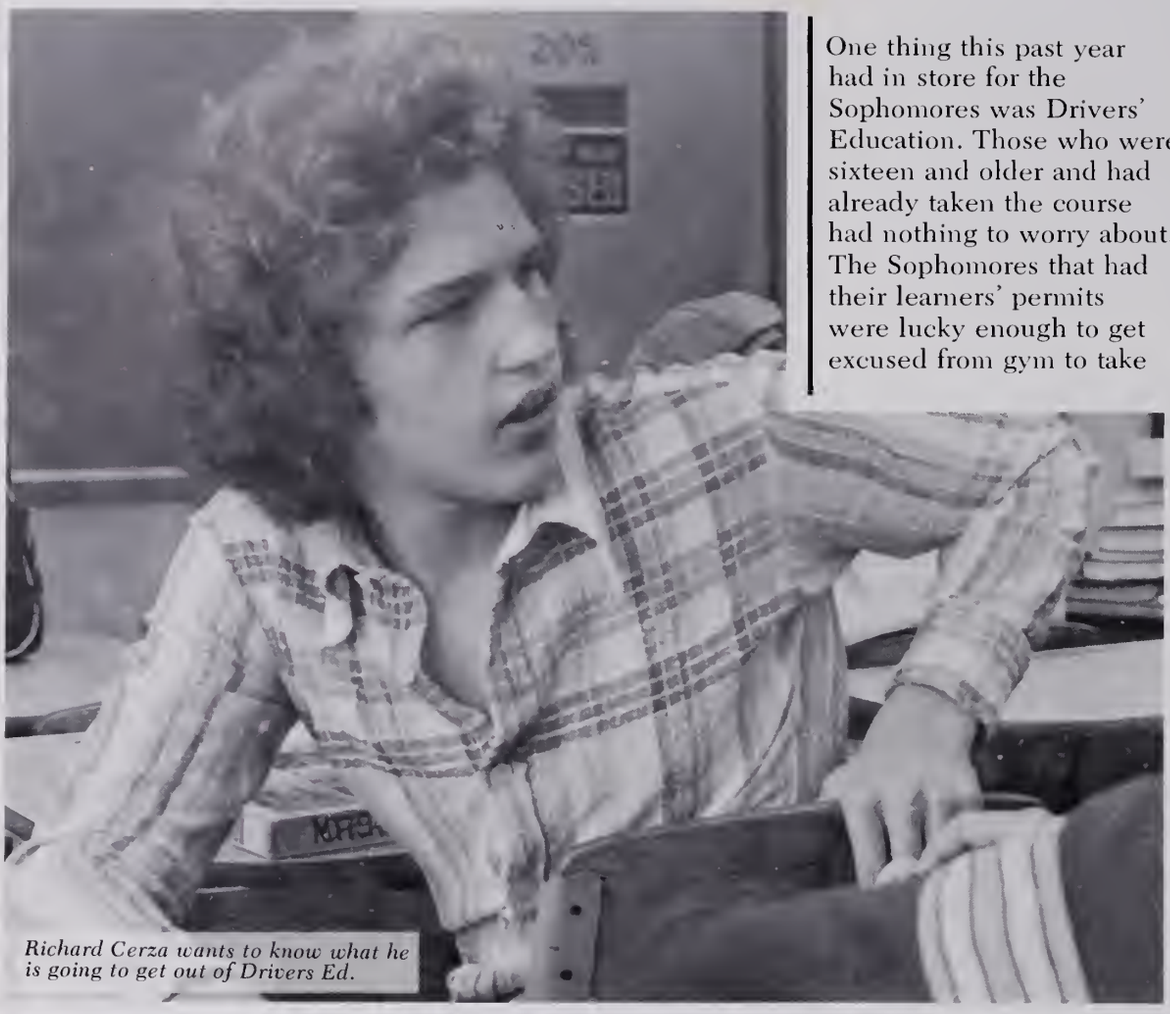
Burpees



Richard Cerza wants to know what he is going to get out of Drivers Ed.

One thing this past year had in store for the Sophomores was Drivers' Education. Those who were sixteen and older and had already taken the course had nothing to worry about. The Sophomores that had their learners' permits were lucky enough to get excused from gym to take "Behind the Wheel." The only Sophomores left were the ones too young to have their permits. They had to live with the strains of gym and the tests of Drivers Ed. It's never been decided which was harder; 25 multiple choice questions (that made no sense at all), or push-ups, sit-ups, or BURPEES!

Drivers Ed. always left students feeling like they would never want to see a car again. All that one learned were the many ways of having a wreck, an easy way to get injured, and last, but not least, how to tell your parents you have just totaled their new car.

Class of '80

The Freshman Class poses a puzzle. They remain a class without a sponsor or noteworthy accomplishments. Under the SCA's prodding, they did, however; elect officers late in November — Shelley Wynn, President; Jack Parsons, Vice-President; Chris King, Treasurer and Cheryll McNair, Secretary. Actually, the class is merely following the pattern of apathy set by preceding Freshman Classes who were likewise unused to being low men on the totem pole.

Freshmen found Physical Science difficult at first, but with constant effort they finally mastered it.

After the first crucial weeks, most Freshmen got into the turbulent cycle of arranging a social life and maintaining acceptable grades.

FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION

Pulsating from the temples of teachers, come waves of wisdom. The individual teachers are formed into departments or broadcasting systems, each calibrating its methods of broadcasting to the wavelength of the student. Hence, the copy represents the Department Chairmen's responses to how their departments are seeking to calibrate their teaching methods to meet the needs of today's student.

Members of the Administration, such as guidance counselors, rarely have time to take a short break.

History Department Broadcasts Wisdom Waves

HISTORY

"The Social Studies Department continues to strive for excellence in instruction in its efforts to help develop in its students, wisdom — the ability to make wise, independant decisions based on accurate facts, clear reasoning, and understanding. Concerned as it is with the acquisition of knowledge, it is aware that social studies is more than the sum of the social sciences. History and the Social sciences remain important sources, but they cannot be isolated from the humanities and the natural sciences. The Department thus believes in giving serious consideration to the interests and values that students hold about themselves and society. However, students must become experienced in discerning fact from opinion. The Social Studies Department is sensitive to the needs of the students, striving to provide those elective social studies courses such as Sociology and Psychology for which there is sufficient demand. The Department believes the education of the student should include the development of an historical perspective, or a sense of the past which would serve as a buffer against presentism, a living just for today. In addition, the Social Studies Department recognizes the need of the student to function in the complex world and thus that the function of knowledge should be to assist the student toward that end.

"The Social Studies Department subscribes to John Dewey's precept that the best learning is "learning by doing." The mock election this school year was a notable achievement and a fine tribute to the energies and talents of both the government teachers and the many students who participated.

"The development of competency in social behavior is another task regarded by the department as very important. That there is a need to assist the student in learning to cope with inner and outer conflict, as well as with authority, is very apparent. The supportive roles played by administration and guidance are noteworthy, but the need for greater and more immediate psychological services remains.

"In assisting the student to reach the larger goal of wisdom, the department recognizes that each person must have the opportunity to decide for himself in accordance with the evidence available, the values he chooses and the rules of logic — all of which the school has a responsibility in helping to develop. However, the Social Studies Department believes that in the achievement of its worthy goals, the least it can do is the most possible."

LIBERAL AND INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The Liberal and Industrial Arts Department includes Chorus, ROTC, VICA, Deca, Art, Shop, and Mechanical Drawing.

The Liberal Arts Department offers the student a chance to express himself in a creative manner. It strives to do so through the classes it offers such as chorus, and Drama.

Classes such as VICA and DECA give the student a chance to go to school and hold a job at the same time, and thereby earn two credits. ROTC, which leads into the college ROTC, gives its students a good military training and develops their abilities for leadership.

THE TEACHING SYSTEM

The End Of The One Year-One Textbook Course

ENGLISH

"Students need writing, reading, and oral skills to get along in today's world. The English Department in its program tries to provide lessons that will improve these skills. All students are not motivated to work to improve or gain from the English curriculum, but those who are find they have a good background.

"The Department is at present looking into a phase elective program. We feel we would like to offer the student a program that gives him a good background geared to his individual needs as well as a program that offers him a choice to appeal to his individual interests. Our teachers are enthusiastic and find it exciting and creative working up possible course selections that can include much more variety than the current one-year-one textbook course."

Third year Spanish students fine that there is still a lot Mrs. Underhill can teach them.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

"The Foreign Language Department sees today's needs in foreign language to be those of basic communication; increased understanding of foreign peoples and cultures, and an awareness of the world around us insofar as other people's customs and habits are concerned.

"Through conversation using the language labs, through translation and writing, through word derivation and sentence structure, through various projects dealing with the culture and habits of another people, through games and "fun" projects that emphasize proficiency in the language per se, through filmstrips and tapes dealing with real life situations as well as mythology, and by means of outside reading and projects. All of these are aimed at proficiency and thorough understanding of the language, the people, and the culture in general."

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

"The Physical Education Department defines the needs of today's student to be the development of good health care habits and good exercise habits. It also seeks to develop good driving habits and give an introductory knowledge of First Aid through a course offered to sophomores.

"The Department strives to attian its goals by means of filmstrips, projects and occasional lectures from authorities in the respective fields."

NUMERICAL KNOWLEDGE

MATH

"The math department attempts to meet the needs of today's students by offering a variety of classes homogeniously grouped. This year a new general math class was added on the tenth grade level and the department has abolished the textbook and written a workbook for basic ninth grade general math students.

"Student needs fall into a wide spectrum, ranging from simple basics to challenging advanced problems. All students need to be able to perform basic mathematical operations and to apply them to everyday situations — buying, figuring percent, taxes, operating a cash register, bank telling, buying a car, figuring income taxes . . . Some students need further skills in order to pursue careers in engineering, architecture, science . . . as well as general advanced education. The ability to think logically and arrive at reasonable conclusions carries over into all facets of living.

"Every student needs to function as a complete, thinking human with skills to be self-supporting, creative, constructive and satisfied."

BUSINESS

"The Business Department meets the needs of today's students in two ways. The various classes teach students the skills and knowledge they need to handle many of the business affairs in their personal lives such as income taxes, budgeting, handling money and banking.

"The Business Department also trains those students who desire to enter the world of work upon graduation from high school. The classes provide skills necessary to enter the business world. On-the-job experience is also provided for those students who desire such training and experience. The equipment in the Business Department is comparable to the modern offices in the area. A model office and simulations are used to make the knowledge gained in the classes realistic and relevant to that which is happening in business."

SCIENCE

The members of this department have exhibited a "futuristic" approach toward our current science curriculum. Within the past two years we have added science survey courses in biology, chemistry, and physics in order to meet the needs of the non-college bound student. Quantitative Physical Science (QPS) has been added to the ninth grade program and astronomy has become an integral part of the physical science courses.

As "futurists", our department would like to be able to offer advanced courses in biology, chemistry, and physics. We would like to establish preceptor program between the school and various science related industries in Portsmouth and Chesapeake.

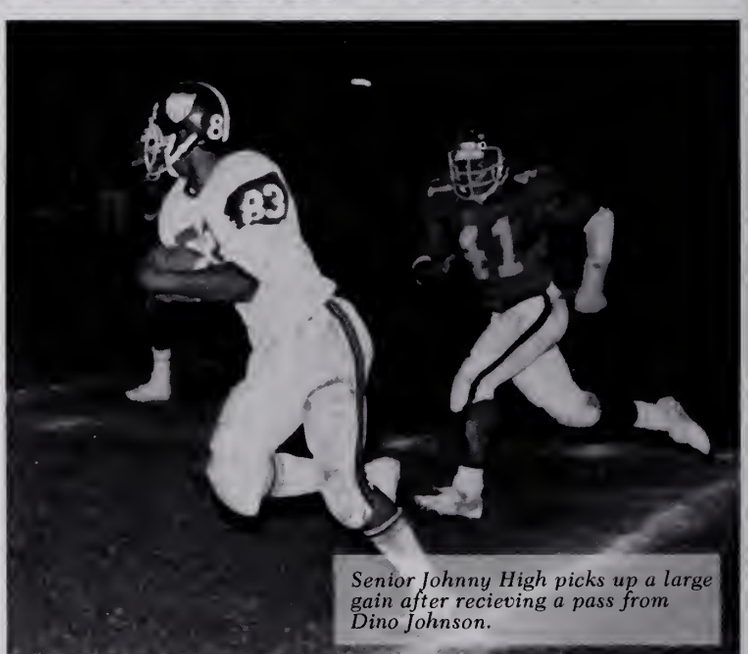
SPORTS

The sports program at Churchland has always been one of of the best in the area. The football team finished with a 9-1 record for two years in a row, the basketball team proved to be one of the best in many years, and student participation increased in girl's sports as they excelled in all fields. Churchland was also a district contender in most spring sports. All in all, Churchland represented the school well in all sports.

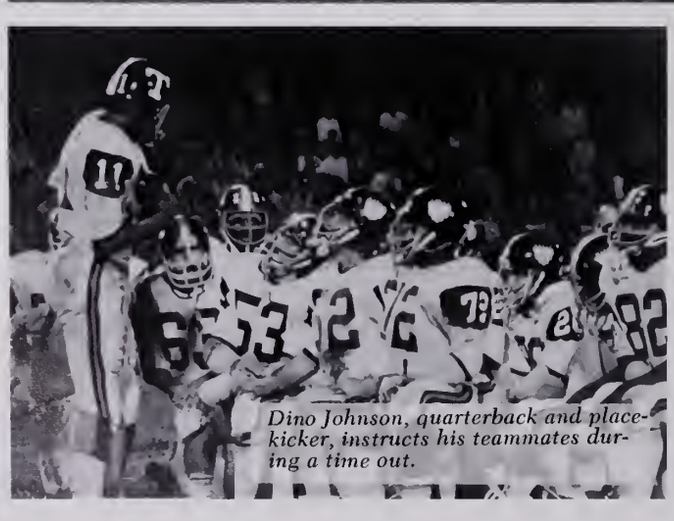
Best Team Ever!?

Larry Twiford, Dino Johnson, Johnny High, Earl McDaniel, and BoBo Ricks tear through a spirit sign after being psyched up by a pre-game talk before the Norcom game.

Fred Jones goes up to grab a pass from quarterback Dino Johnson. The ball was caught, fumbled, then recovered by Jones. The Norcom coach, Joe Langston, felt that the pass was not held on to long enough to be a completed pass. When he tried to tell the ref how he felt, he recieved an early exit from the game.



Senior Johnny High picks up a large gain after recieving a pass from Dino Johnson.



Dino Johnson, quarterback and placekicker, instructs his teammates during a time out.

Tee Tee Sumner is stopped by three Norcom defenders in a game which Coach Bill Strickland labled as one of the best football games played in his years of coaching at CHS.

The Truckers, for the second year in a row, were rated as the team to beat in the Southeastern District football race this past year. The opposing coaches and the Virginian Pilot and The Ledger Star newspapers, all picked Churchland for first place. Labeled as "the strongest offensive squad in the district and one of the best defensively," the Truckers seemed to be a sure bet over second place predicted Western Branch. Churchland returned fifteen lettermen from the 1975 team that went 9-2 and won the Southeastern District. Such returnees as Tee Tee Sumner, Dino Johnson, Keith Parsons, Paul Neumann, Fred Jones, Earl McDaniel, Bobo Ricks, Tim Copely, and Johnny High, all seemed to give Churchland a championship team. However, as Coach Strickland so well put it, — "The only thing better than being figured to be a champion is being a champion. That's up to my team."

The season started with the Truckers pounding Oscar Smith and then Wilson.

The stage was set. Churchland, having a 2-0 record, was ranked number one in Tidewater. Ranked number two with the identical record was Western Branch. At stake in the Western Branch Churchland game, only the third game of the season, was the control of the Top Ten in Tidewater and more important, the lead in the Southeastern District . . .

Tee Tee Sumner, Churchland's second all time leading rusher, goes over the goal line to score one of his many touchdowns of the year.

Season shattered

The week before the Churchland-Western Branch game was a preview of the classic rivalry, growing more intense each year. Splattered eggs and sneak attacks were common sites during the week. For the second year in a row, the clash was touted as the game of the year.

Churchland took a slim 13-6 lead into the fourth quarter of a hotly contested game, but the Bruins came back to score on costly Trucker mistakes which left the score at 13-12. With 8,000 people anxiously watching, Jeff Bolton, the Bruin quarterback, completed the 2-point conversion pass to Mike Giacolone to give the Bruins a one-point lead with 51 seconds remaining. The season dwindled past the brave Trucker players as Reggie Jordan intercepted a desperation pass by Dino Johnson which virtually iced the game.

Keith Parsons tries to find some open field.

Fred Jones robs Western Branch of a touchdown.

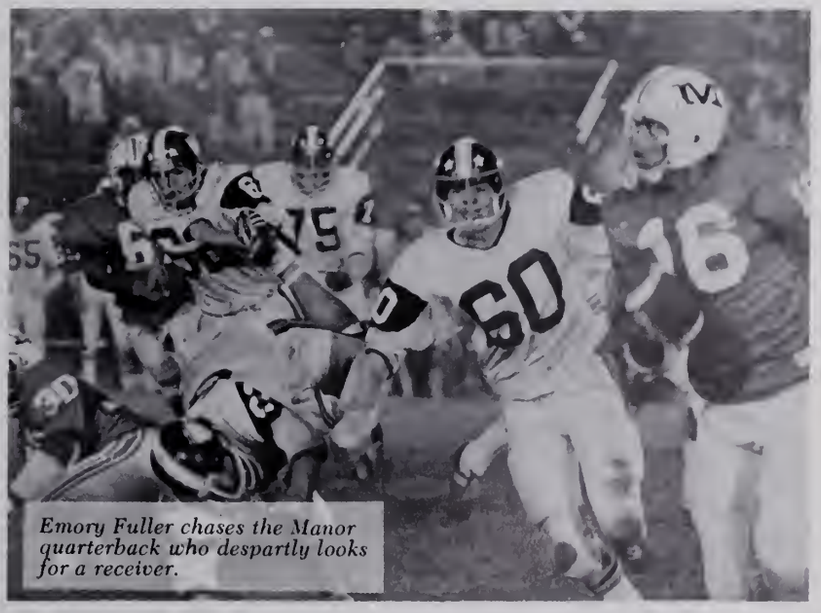
Team Wins and Hopes

The seven games following the Western Branch defeat were an impressive display of talent by the Trucker football team. Churchland bounced back after the Bruin defeat to win the next seven games. It was the first time since Manor's existance that a Trucker football team has defeated a Manor team. Also in this seven game winning streak was Churchland's clobbering of the Greyhounds of Norcom. Norcom was tied for first until the Truckers finished with them.

Churchland's non-district game was against Lafayette, a Peninsula team. It was predicted in pre-season that these two teams would meet in the regional playoffs. Therefore, the game was called "the could-have-been bowl." The Southeastern District team, the Truckers, humiliated the Peninsula team with a whopping victory, 37-6, to close out a successful year.

Ralph Vick, all-Portsmouth guard, pursues a Manor defender.

Tim Copley, watching the ball carefully, is ready to make a long gain.

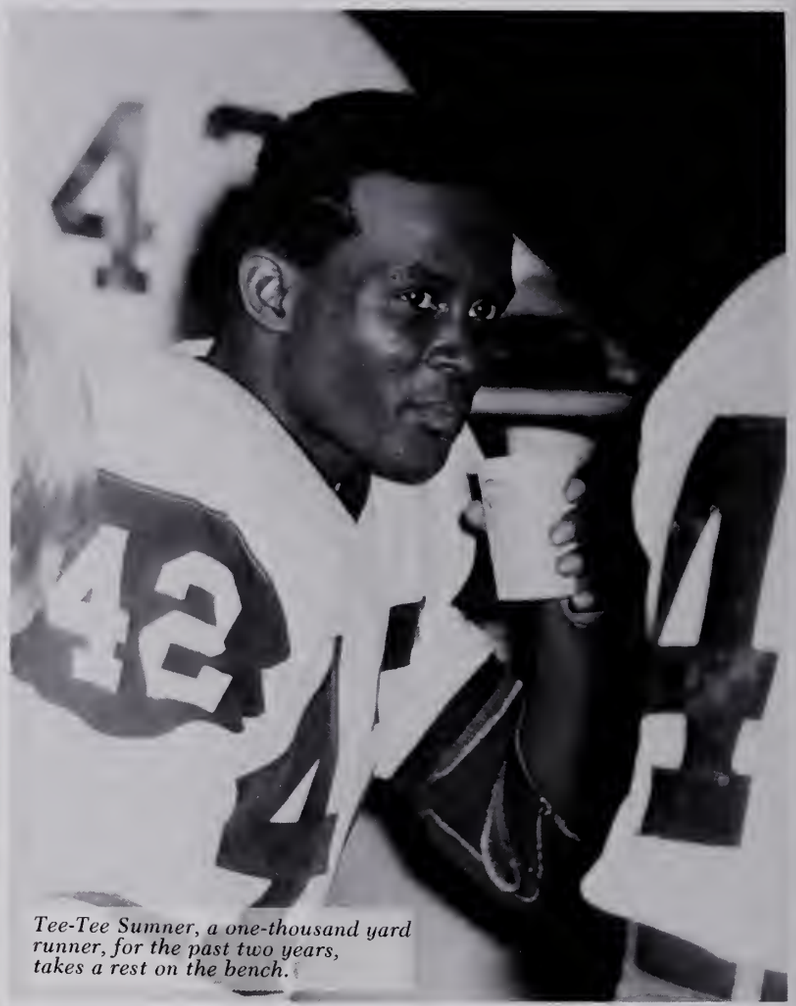


Emory Fuller chases the Manor quarterback who despartly looks for a receiver.

So Close

The ladder to success is a long and hard one to climb. The Churchland Truckers lost one game by one point in the last minute of play. This one downfall caused the Truckers to be eliminated from Regional Competition. The Truckers went into each game with their heads held high worried as much about if Western Branch might hit a pitfall as would they win that night.

After each game, the Trucker fans rushed to Burger King only to find Western Branch had added another win to their growing string of victories. Yet with that one defeat, the Truckers finished with a 9-1 season, second in the Southeastern and sixth in the State. In the hearts of every Trucker fan, we all knew we were truely the best team in the State.



Tee-Tee Sumner, a one-thousand yard runner, for the past two years, takes a rest on the bench.

Coach Bill Strickland confers with running back Paul Neumann on the side lines.

Baby Truckers Impressive

The baby Truckers, led by captains Walter Ballard, Steve Williams, and Rudolph Hightower, registered an impressive 4-3 record in this year's junior varsity football season. The team was coached by Coaches Robert Parker and Leon Thomas.

Gary Carr drops back for a pass.

Churchland defenders surround opponent.

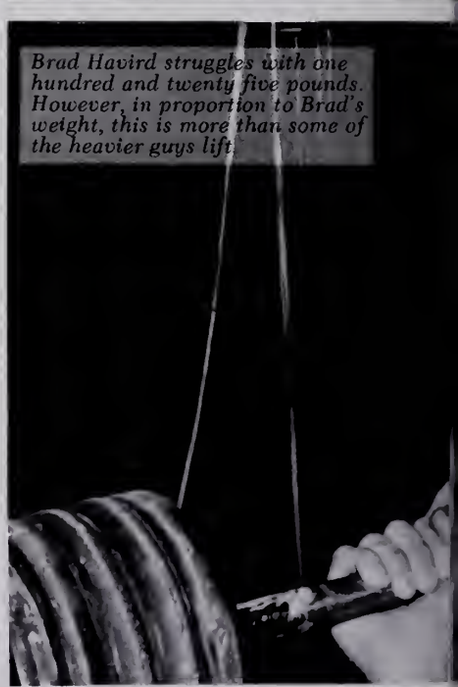
Steve Williams punts under heavy pressure.

Truckers Lift Themselves to victory

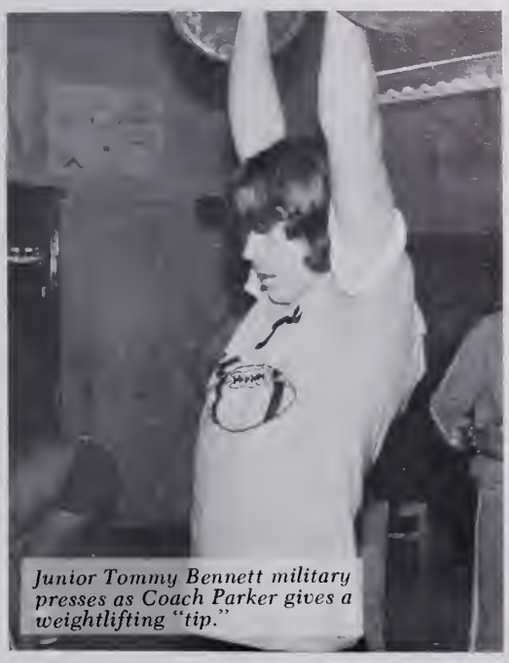
There is a sport at Churchland that gets very little publicity and has very few fans. However, this sport is the basis of almost all of the rest of the sports. This sport is weightlifting. Initiated a few years ago by Coach Robert Parker, weightlifting has found its spot at Churchland. Football players "lift" during the winter and spring, wrestlers and basketball players lift during the fall and spring, and many people even lift all school year long. Since weightlifting, teams at Churchland, especially the football team, have had an enormous increase in their victories. To keep the competition keen, Coach Parker, who is an experienced weightlifter from college, has scheduled weightlifting meets with other schools which usually take place in the spring.

In this exercise, Conrad Dixon, a football player, works on his upper back, shoulders, and biceps.

Tim Fletcher is thinking about next year's football season.



Brad Havird struggles with one hundred and twenty five pounds. However, in proportion to Brad's weight, this is more than some of the heavier guys lift.



Junior Tommy Bennett military presses as Coach Parker gives a weightlifting "tip."

Coach Parker calmly covers up his amazement as Mark Satterthwaite does his "curls."

Kenny Burgess is hoping to build up his chest with this exercise.

Even Season as Griffin Leaves

The Truckers presented Coach Griffin with his best record in four years. In Griffin's last year as basketball coach — he is leaving to take the position of director of the Portsmouth YMCA — the Truckers managed a 9-9 record. The team played exceptionally well at times and depressingly bad at other times. One of the finest moments of Churchland Basketball occurred when the Truckers "blew out" the Deep Creek Hornets who were at the time fighting for first place. Some called it the finest basketball game played by a Churchland team in at least five years.

The Truckers were led by seniors Ollie Waters and Vernon Poyner and sophomores Fred Jones and Earl McDaniel who became academically ineligible at midterm. Also turning in strong performances were Mike Blythe, Chris Skeeter and Dino Johnson. Ollie Waters, Vernon Poyner, Dino Johnson, Bobby Stanley and Burle Stromberg will all be graduating this year causing a rebuilding season next year.

Coach Benn Griffin shouts instructions to his players as Asst. Coach Jaro listens in the background. Griffin accepted an offer to become Director of the YMCA, so he is seen here coaching for the last time at CHS.

Vernon Poyner "skies" for a rebound against a Wilson opponent. Vernon had the highest scoring and rebound average on the team – 15 points and 12 rebounds per game.

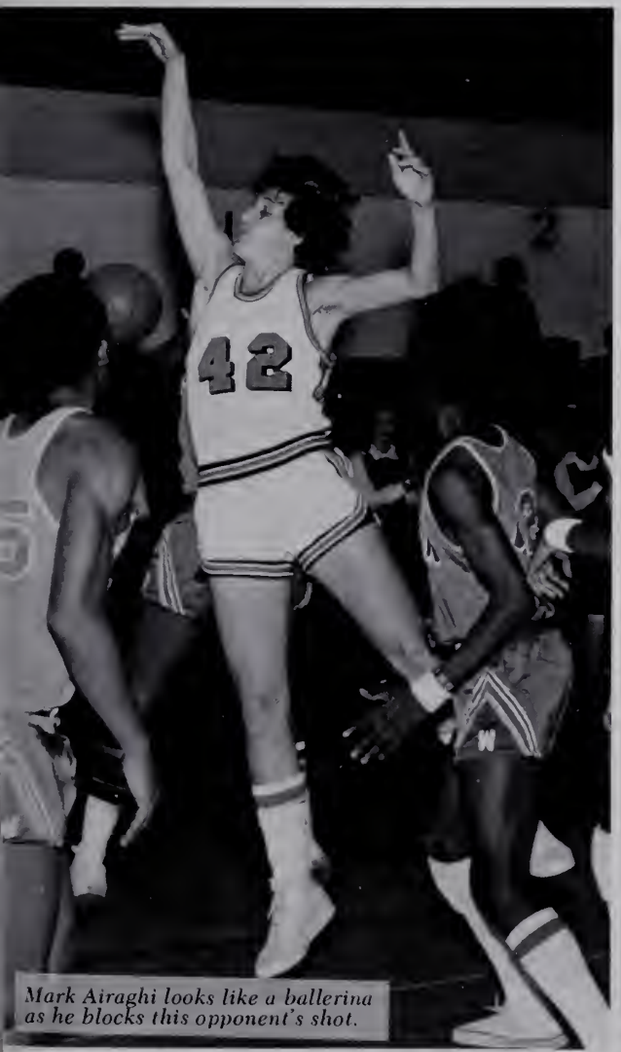
Senior center Dino Johnson goes to the boards for two. If Dino had gone to the boards more, as the coaches would have liked, he would have increased his scoring average greatly.

Chris Skeeter, a junior, moved into the starting position late in the season and gained valuable experience for his senior year.

Fred Jones is "stuffed" on this shot. Being only a shophomore may be one of the most sought after basketball players by the time he is a senior.

Senior guard Ollie Waters, who controlled the tempo of many games, is fouled as he goes for a lay-up.

The Junior Varsity basket ball team suffered through one of its worst seasons in recent memory. Many good, young players made the team but most of these were lost to either grades or attitude problems. Steve Williams and Mark Airaghi turned in fine years and it is expected that next year's varsity team can use them.



Mark Airaghi looks like a ballerina as he blocks this opponent's shot.

L.C. Dixon soars to the basket by two defenders.

Truckerettes Triumph

The Truckerettes, led by All-District Cindy Bolling, finished the year with a 6-3 record in Southeastern District play. The 6-3 record was good for third place. In the first game of the tournament, the Truckerettes faced Manor. After beating Manor, the Truckerettes faced Wilson in the semifinals. As was the case the year before, the Truckerettes were beaten by Wilson in a close and hotly contested game.

Susan Riddick applies the soft touch which results in two points.

Tricia Webb tries in vain to work the ball inside the Manor defense.

BEST EVER

Churchland, for the first time ever, has had a winning season in cross-country.

This is an incredible feat considering that the team was plagued by blood poisoning, shin splints, and illness all season long. Runners included John Harrison, David Duke, Joe Bardalos, Bruce Arnold, Tom Smith, and Greg Branan. The harriers finished with a 3-2-1 record under the direction of First Sergeant Bill Tate.

Bruce Arnold keeps up his pace as a photographer snaps this shot from a car traveling along side of Bruce.

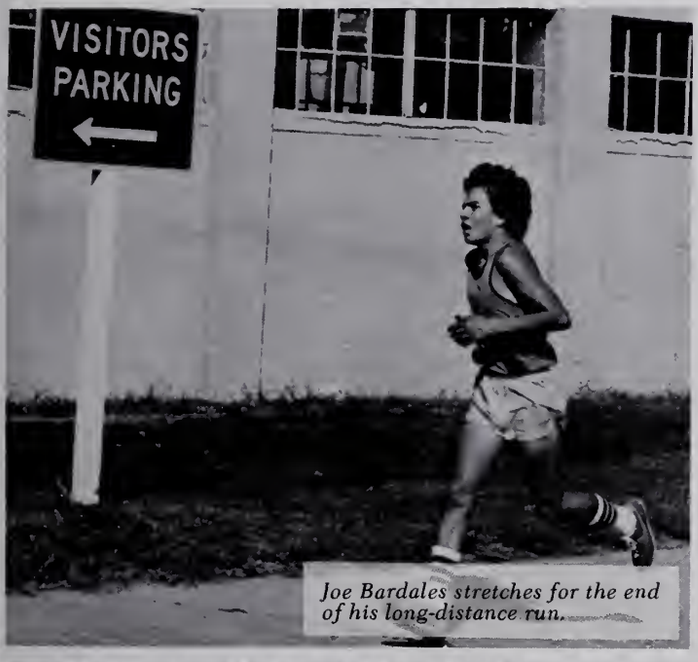
First Sergeant Tate instructs John Harrison, Tom Smith, and David Duke on their schedule for the day.



Joe Bardales stretches for the end of his long-distance run.

Tom Smith takes a breather on the "comfortable" grass.

Took the title by surprise!

David Lamm receives two points for a take down as he works his way to another victory.

The 1977 edition of the Churchland Wrestling team did an outstanding job and maintained its reputation as the toughest in the District this year. Led by seniors Neil Wilson, Mike Wise, and BoBo Ricks, the grapplers, having lost to Great Bridge in their dual meet, took the district title with surprising ease over the second-place Wildcats.

Eight wrestlers qualified for the regional tournament, where Churchland fell only six points short of regional victory. However, Ricks, Wilson, Wise, and David Lamm qualified for state competition and represented Churchland well there, Ricks finishing first and Neil second.

Faced with a young team and weight problems, Coach Mounie and Coach Gibbs once again molded the team into its winning ways. Freshman Steve Valdivieso came on strong when brought up from J.V. due to the loss of undefeated Bobby Greenwood at ninety-eight. Ron Berry, after a struggle to make weight, earned valuable team points in the District competition, as did Joe Burton, Tim Mounie and Wes Marchetti. The season ended in success as the Truckers once again proved themselves to have one of the toughest wrestling teams in the region, as well as in the state.

Neil Wilon's experience and quick moves were the main reasons for his successful season.

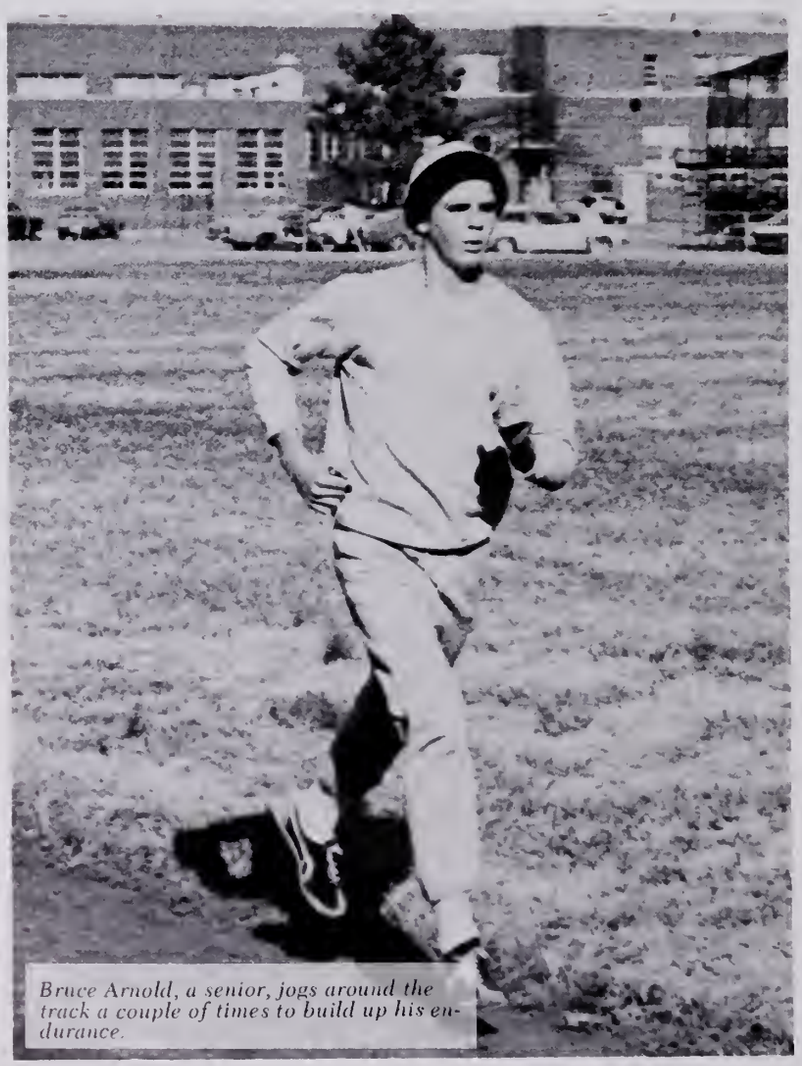
Ronald Berry made a fine showing for Churchland once he was able to qualify in his weight division.

Mike Wise works patiently as his opponent tries to get outside the circle.

Bobo 'Minuteman' Ricks was noted for his awesomeness and quick pins which carried him to his state victory.

RUN JOHN RUN...

In order to save time, money and travel expense, the Portsmouth School System decided to have girls and boys track on the same schedule. Although the original plan was for all schools to maintain separatly coached boys and girls teams, Churchland proved the exception of the rule. The reason — was that when track season started Mrs. Lassiter was out of commission because of pregnancy. As a result, Coach Thomas combined the teams temporarily in a joint training program. Male chauvanists expressed the opinion that perhaps the girls team would improve because of their efforts to keep up with the fleet footed male.



Bruce Arnold, a senior, jogs around the track a couple of times to build up his endurance.

Marcus Clark, who is a senior, partakes in rigorous track exercises before the season begins.

Greg Brannon, John Harrison, and Joe Wisham practice their long distance running in order to build up their endurance. Many expect veteran John Harrison to have a good season.

Tommy Bennett practices throwing the discus. This field demands agility and strength.

Nancy Pierce puts long hours into even the simplest moves of her routine in hope of a victory on the balance beam.

"First of all start on top; then . . .

. . . swing under and around like so . . .

. . . until you end up at the bottom like this. It's easy."

A Challenge...

Before beginning practice the girls must go through numerous warm up exercises such as the backward walkover as shown here.

Gail Moonie demonstrates her skill and grace on the balance beam, with a little help from Sharon Darley, to Amy Bowers.

Olympic standards. They evoke a challenge . . .

. . . a challenge that causes the sixteen members of Churchland's gymnastic team to practice three hours a day, five days a week from late October to mid March.

. . . a challenge that caused team members to interrupt their summers to conduct a gymnastics clinic to raise money to replace outdated uneven bars.

. . . a challenge that causes some of the girls to seek further practice after the season has ended by competing on Virginia Beach teams like Gym Strada.

Perhaps some find it hard to imagine why anyone would be so dedicated to one sport, but the challenge of perfection can't go unanswered.

Anything but Plain

The men (and women) in white showed they were anything but plain with their vivid displays of play making this year. With serves, half-vollies and smashes as diversified as the spectrum, the team ended the year with a dazzaling record.

With the return of spring weather there was also the return of many avid tennis players looking for a place on the team. The year began with nearly twenty persons trying out but was reduced by a tournament to determine the final team. The Truckers got off to an encouraging start in their first match where they defeated Norcom.

The loss to Kenny Stone (number two) and Robert Nelms (number three) was felt this year but Coach Jaronczyk was able to find enough new talent to compensate for their loss.

Cindy Bolling displays her blinding speed in returning a hard shot.

John Connell concentrates on returning a forehand for a winner.

Mike Bricker approaches the net only to be lobbed over.

Steve Leon displays his fine backhand form.

The Sluggers

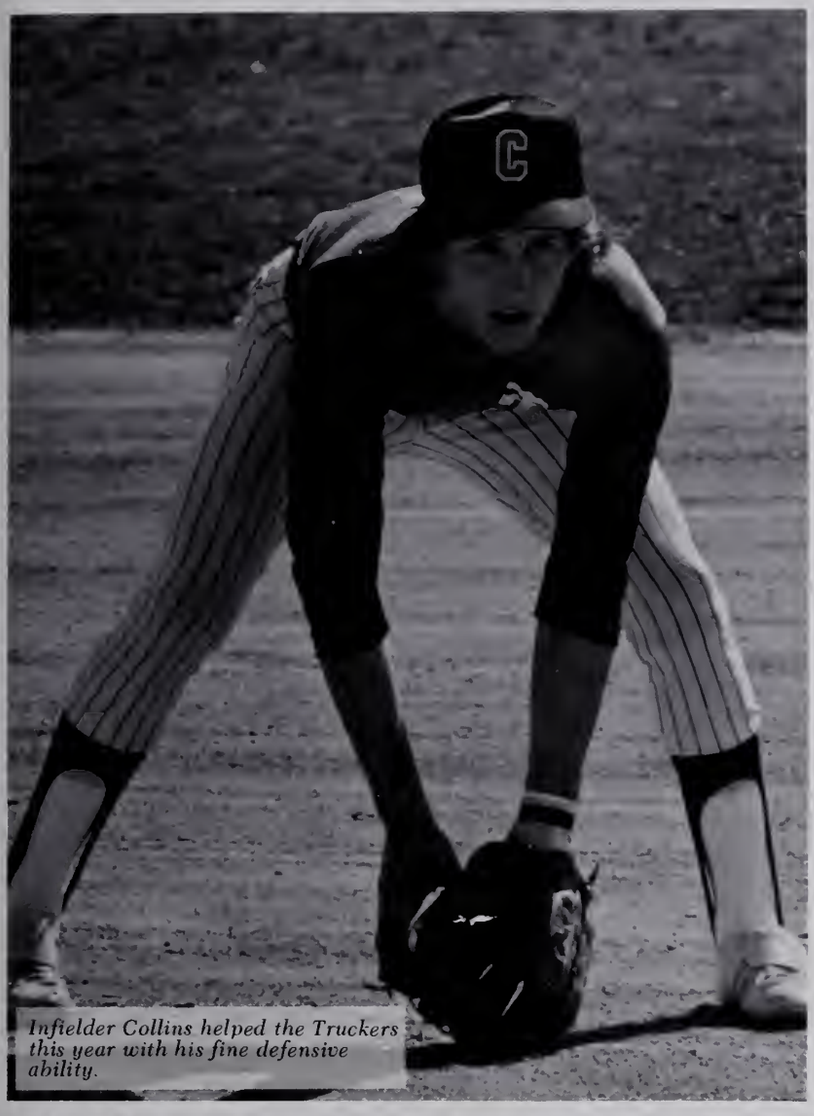
The baseball program this year had taken a new approach. There was no "set" Varsity and Junior Varsity teams. Of the twenty-six players carried by Coach Rhodes and Coach Underhill, the thirteen which they felt had done the best in practices and preceding games played the Varsity game and the others played the Junior Varsity game. This approach had mixed feelings among the players.

The team had seventeen of the twenty-six returning from the last year. This was a considerable amount of experience coming back. Coach Rhodes felt that he had the team to beat, and this held true. To get to where the team got this year they had to last through practice everyday after school.

The team needed money this year for equipment so they went out and sold spices. Each player was inspired to sell these spices because they, the players, got a profit. For every 32 bottles they sold, the player got $5.00.

Bobby Stanely was an ace on the mound this year for the Truckers.

Paul Newman sparked the Truckers at the plate this year.



Infielder Collins helped the Truckers this year with his fine defensive ability.

These are the weapons that the Truckers used.

Mike Blythe helped the Truckers at the plate.

Barely concealing her deep concentration, Cindy Bolling connects bat to ball for a line drive to third.

Fast Pitch

As the girls' softball season began, there were a few minor changes with one major exception. This came about with the evolution of the fast pitch.

According to Coach Judy Glisson, this proved to be a handicap to the team. The pitcher, after gaining enough speed, was not able to control the accuracy of the ball. The batter, on the other hand, had a hard time just trying to hit whatever the pitcher threw. Coach Glisson described it as a "pitcher, catcher" game.

But with seven new players and eight returnees, the team went on and had a very successful year.

Tricia Webb, one of Churchlands ace pitchers, displays her complete confidence on the mound.

The golf team is one of the strongest in the region. With five returning players, including number one ranked Steve Liebler, the team is stronger than ever and is again expected to win the district competition. They are also looking toward a regional and possibly even a state victory. Second ranked Larry Strickland was the only non-returning member although freshman Steve Douglas is expected to help fill this gap.

This year it was decided that six would play instead of four. This gave much more depth to Churchland's team.

The team lost its coach, Mr. Benn Griffin, before the season ever started. Before leaving though he got the team started practicing. He felt that this was one of the best teams ever and promised to follow them all the way to the state tournament.

Winning or Losing

The sports program was one of victory and also defeat. The season was filled with close nit wins and also last second losses. Whether the teams were winning or losing there were still a group of enthusiastic students encouraging the players. This group of individuals were often seen after school making posters or spirit tags or just practicing. They were the cheerleaders.

CLUBS

Organizations are an important part of life at Churchland. They give a student a feeling of unity and a way to vent the energies stored during the school day. There is a wide variety of groups the student can participate in, from the physical rigors of sports to the mental exercise of the chess club. At Churchland there is a group to suit the desires of everyone.

In a conserted effort to dazzle the mind, create an illusion, and become unique, the business staff of the '77 TRUCKER has chosen to employ a graphic concept using areas geometrically equivalent to traditionally conservative "square" business advertisements. It is with great pleasure that we present to you this, our new concept of business in shapes. Please patronize our advertisers in a way that would be promotive and perpetuative to the non-extinguishable TRUCKER spirit.

RETROSPECT

Once a moment has passed, it is irretrievably lost. This past year, a mere second of eternity, represents a milestone in our lives. Considering the year's record as a path, we've meandored; employing history, logic, and speculation as our guides. Assessing the year and its events more completely involves bringing it to a thousand — eyed present. The purpose of this section (RETROSPECT) is to delve into this past year and recall its highlights. To include school events only would be like peering through a tunnel; a vital peripheral scope would be lacking. Therefore, aspects of scholastic as well as national and universal nature will be covered. It is this writer's intent to create a section which will relive the past year, hopefully kindling a feeling of nostalgia and that unexplainable sense of deja vu.

There is a place in my mind's eye. I imagine its every detail. It's a serene setting and when I'm there, I'm at peace with the world. I'm not sure if I've really been there except in a dream, yet I escape
there often in my mind and simply reflect.

FAD OR FAUCET—MAJOR

Fads are once again booming. Over 15 million citizen-band radios were sold this year and a digital way of life inched its way into necessity with the introduction of L.E.D. watches, clocks, radios, and even thermometers. Fads pass day in and day out, always revealing some previously hidden oddity of human behavior.

PENAL REFORM

In assessing the past year, this writer finds that America, in general, has overcome many of its worst plagues and manifestations. The reformers have worked diligently and have not only proposed but also have tried to enact legislation that would be not only beneficial but also promotive to the general well-being of the public at large. It's not the intent of this author to produce a manuscript which could, in fact, be considered a form of editorializing; however, due to the nature of this section, and the unmistakenly deranged mind of this writer, and the editor of this book, swehttaM htieK, it was deemed necessary to verbalize on a subject of arbitrary choice that was felt to be not only overlooked by the reformers, but also plausibly essential to the perpetual growth of our nation.

The proposals and suggestions that will be made are intended to realistically display a problem of devastating magnitude and to offer some nonsensical solutions. Paternally originated names have not and will not be employed so as to protect not only the innocent, but the guilty as well. Because of the plain and simple fact that the nature of this article is questionable, it will remain unsigned. Any remarks or form of rebuttal should be placed in writing and sent to: Post Office Box OU812, Alcatraz, California, Section 4-F, Cell Block·A1-NUT, Attention: Solitary Confinement. (Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply) Replies can be expected anytime between ten years to life.

Our nation, besides concerning itself with proper and law abiding citizens, often finds itself confronted with the problems of the deranged, and people deemed as "Undesirable." Americans have devised a system of reform whose principles hold its "Penal roots" in a foundation labeled: Punishment and Reform.

It is the concerted effort of our judicial department and local courts to imprison individuals who merely break the law. I ask you, is breaking the law all there is to crime? Is it justice to imprison just anyone? I find, with little or no exception that the grade of prisoners in the American jails today is one of very low caliber. It's not often that we encounter individuals who have attained an education beyond the sixth grade, and whose actual mentality reflects that of a third grader. Now realistically, how much intelligence does it take to rip off a neighborhood 7-Eleven, or a Kentucky Fried Chicken, or a MacDonalds, or Something! Beyond a rubber knife, or a cap gun, a 98¢ nylon stocking is the only other equipment needed. And hell, anyone can say, "gimme da money!" Even most of our widely renown and historically noted forgers, embezzlers, rapists, and thieves have only displayed signs of petty crime. It takes magnanimous individuals such as presidents and top government officials to pull off something real juicy. Now we're talking about something! These are the top people in our country. I suggest this is what we're striving for, a better grade of criminals. I don't think that anyone can argue the fact that America likes first rate people in every category. Every man who can be a first rate something has no right to be a fifth rate something; for a fifth rate something is no better than a first rate nothing. Why not strive to improve our grade of criminals? It seems as though just anyone can get into jail. You don't even need any qualifications, no resume, no teacher recommendation. You can even get there without a lawyer! I know that America is geared to equal rights, but this is ridiculous!

What would it be like if a warden turned convicted criminals away because they didn't finish high school? It would be better; these guys could get back onto the streets and learn, that way, we could keep up our standards in our prisons. No longer would our criminals be burdened with the task of socializing with illiterates, and the stereo-typed death-row character. They could entertain themselves with the companionship of novelists, nuclear engineers, congressmen, and even Supreme Court Justices. Why not have prisoneers apply to certain prisons, like high school students apply to certain colleges? They would have to complete Prison Aptitude Tests (PAT's), and then would have to score high on Criminal Achievement Tests to even be considered for the better prisons. Imagine a guy like selrahC nosnaM waiting three months for acceptance to Sing-Sing, only to be put on the waiting list at Alcatraz. Think of the fury of having wasted $25 for each application, and then being refused at all but Pungo Prison. This would provide not only for competition, but enact a system of prison specialization. This could be interpreted in two different ways. Firstly, certain prisons might only accept criminals who have committed certain crimes. Wouldn't it be interesting to visit an entire community of flashers, or a building full of homosexual rapists? It could also be interpreted to mean that all the inhabitants of a certain prison population might be rehabilitated and socialized all in the same manner. To further explain this idea, it is necessary to realize that in this theory of upgraded prisoners and upgraded prisons, rehabilitation would play a vital role. Not to degrade our present rehabilitation system, but one that incorporates therapy such as car production and computer programming rather than ditch-digging, and broommaking might be more bennificial to the physical, social, and moral well-being of the inmate.

Imagine cars coming off the assembly line brand-named "Attica GT" Catchy slogans such as, "You asked for it, we got it, Attica" would be prevalent on network TV. Or picture buying a digital electric calculator whose guarantee states, "Simply return if not completely satisfied" — not that they would fix it or give it back.

Before closing this article, it is necessary to report that these are but a few of the suggested reforms employed in this penal reform theory. Don't think that just like other ideas such as Husband-Wife cells, Singles Weekends, and Cosmetic Surgery were ommitted, that they are not important. Also is the idea of prison scholarships for those truly deserving applicants.

We could make prisons a booming industry in America. We could offer prisoners choice of cell suite, dinner menus, and roommates. No longer would we fear their degrading character qualities and detrimental attributes. People would literally be crashing the gates of such institutions to merely gain entrance and see how America treats its prisoners and how its prisoners treat America!

And one day we must begin our own great explorations.
No longer will we find a hand to hold, nor always hear a voice that calls us back, We must build our own castles, open our own doors, follow our own paths.
For now we are individuals . . .
You and I.
